Generous French Loans Out Shooting News Red and White Men Go Snow Delays Death

—By Arthur Brisbane—

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 29—A Paris newspaper, under the heading Politique et Finance, prints a list of loans made by France to foreign countries since the war ended. They total THIRTEEN BILLION, TWO HUNDRED AND SEVENTY-SEVEN MILLION FRANCS. Not including a loan to Czechoslovakia, of six hundred million francs, made last January 20, a these hundred million franc loan to Finland or a loan made to Polish railroads of four hundred million francs.

The French editor's heading, "Politics and Finance," is well chosen. France has lent Rumania two billions and ninety million francs. Rumania, lying in the shadow of the Russian bear, is important.

France has lent two thousand million francs to Poland, plus four hundred millions lent to Polish railways. Poland, or Russia, and adjoining property including the famous corridor taken from Germany, is important to France.

France has lent to neighbors, near and far, seven hundred and seventy million francs to Turkey; twenty-three million francs to poor old China. This list of generous French loans to the various foreign governments helps you to understand why France feels unable to repay money borrowed from us SINCE THE WAR.

You know that this country has forgiven all sums lent to France during the war. We wiped that out, and requested only repayment of debts that France has incurred since the war ended.

President Hoover made a public statement to that effect and was surprised that it was never published in any newspaper in France except a couple of unimportant Paris papers published in the English language.

Having taken from Germany so much valuable property, Alsace and Lorraine, cash, colonies, etc., France naturally feels a little anxious about her military position with Germany and Russia on the East growing so powerful.

It is natural that France should prefer building up military allies in Europe to repaying money borrowed from us, but why should Uncle Sam be called "Uncle Shylock" by those that took his money and don't intend to pay. That seems an unnecessary touch.

The news continues as usual in our "highly civilized" country. In the southeast two policemen are killed, troops ordered out to prevent lynching. Three thousand miles away off in the northwest you read "two bandits rob 30 passengers aboard train." It was an interesting robbery, one of the bandits is believed to be a woman. Among men lined up and robbed were two detectives that had pistols in their suitcases. There is much authority in the pistol that points first.

Georgia reports the killing of two prohibition agents, with the shooter found guilty. In another corner of the United States, Basil Banghart, called "a member of Detroit's Purple gang," shoots his way out of the county jail, wounds the jailer, commandeers a taxicab and escapes.

We certainly live in a shooting age and the shooters themselves are not immune.

The Chicago Herald and Examiner says Frank Nitti, called "Capone's chief lieutenant," just back from 15 months in Leavenworth Prison, learns that he is "marked for death." There is no joking about such a mark, and it makes the marked one nervous.

Yesterday Leslie M. Shaw, Secretary of the Treasury, under Theodore Roosevelt, died, aged 84. At about the same time Chief Bacon Rind, once ruler of the Osage Indians, passed on to the happy hunting grounds, aged 72. A cancer killed him.

Chief Bacon Rind was six and one-half feet high, and important from the white American point of view because he was chief and adviser of the richest lot of Indians on earth. Oil made them rich. How could large-hearted white men, carefully picking out the worst lands to give to the Indians, imagine that oil worth hundreds of millions was hidden under those barren lands?

Did the white man's statesmen and the Osage chief travel together on the mysterious journey that we all take when life ends? Did one go to one heaven, the other to another heaven? Is one an Indian and the other a white man in the future life, or are both totally unlike Indians and white men?

Playwrights have invented many ways of saving a condemned man at the last minute, but none ever invented circumstances such as delayed the execution of Quincy Wallands. Convicted of killing his wife, he was to have died in the electric chair in Rock View penitentiary.

POWDER BLAST BURNS 2 BOYS

Two small boys, playing with blasting powder and dynamite at Coleman's Ledge, Tremont st., Roxbury, today were severely burned and narrowly escaped being blown up.

The boys, who were taken to Peter Bent Brigham Hospital after passersby had extinguished their flaming clothing, are Bernard Robinshaw and Joseph Keezer, both 8 and both of Walt st., Roxbury.

Young Robinshaw has burns of the face, body and legs. His companion was severely burned on legs and face and is in a serious condition.

The accident revealed that two boxes containing 120 sticks of dynamite were stolen from the powder house on Coleman's Ledge Sunday night.

Police said the boys picked up a large quantity of broken sticks of dynamite, with some of which Robinshaw and Keezer had been playing. They then found a can of blasting powder, and emptying it on the ground, set fire to it.

An explosion and blaze caused heavy damage to the yacht owned by Abner Morse of Brookline at its berth today in the Kennedy marine basin, Squantum, and endangered yachts valued at more than $1,000,000 anchored in the vicinity.

The blast, fire officials say, was caused by a heater in the cabin. John Knudson, caretaker, was ashore eating his luncheon on the pier when the explosion occurred.

Damage to the yacht, which is valued at $100,000, was estimated at more than $1000.

"Yes or No" to Be Settled Soon, Norfolk Emissary in Negotiations Reveals

BULLETIN

Norfolk, Va., March 29 (AP)—John Hughes Curtis said today that he and the other two Norfolk men negotiating for the return of the kidnaped Lindbergh baby were not considering the use of a yacht owned by Charles H. Consolvo of Norfolk, to west the abductors of the child at sea beyond the 12-mile limit.

Norfolk, Va., March 29 (INS)—A yes-or-no showdown with the kidnapers is approaching, according to John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk shipbuilder, who has taken a leading part in negotiations for the return of the Lindbergh baby, kidnaped 28 days ago.

Curtis said negotiations were still in progress.

Curtis was asked if this "yes-or-no" answer would come soon.

"No," he replied. "On the contrary, the negotiations will necessarily be slow."

The Very Rev. H. Dobson Peacock, colleague of Curtis in the negotiations, arrived here by plane from Philadelphia shortly before 2 p. m.

Dressed in a heavy, fur-lined flying suit, Dean Dodson-Peacock stalked into the office of the Naval Reserve squadron in Philadelphia while the plane was being warmed up.

A Suitable Symbol for Insurgent Democrats

THE Democratic insurgents in Congress have given Mr. Hoover a very agreeable Easter memento.

They have presented him with a re-election to the presidency in this year of grace nineteen hundred and thirty-two.

How delighted Mr. Hoover must have been this happy Easter to contemplate the bright colored re-election egg which the insurgent Democrats and the insurgent Republicans had so generously and so certainly presented to him.

The jackass rabbit is the emblem of the insurgents.

Rabbits have always had something to do with Easter—not everybody knows exactly what or why.

But everybody knows now that the jackass rabbits have laid at Mr. Hoover's feet this delightful Easter present that he hardly expected to get.

THE jackass rabbit, as the emblem of the insurrectionary Democrats, is a fitting combination of the jackass, which is the appropriate emblem of the regular Democratic party, and the white rabbit, which is the accepted symbol of timidity—not to mention stupidity.

The jackass rabbit, therefore, emblem of the Democratic revolutionists, expresses admirably and perfectly the interesting and obvious fact that this new Bolshevist party possesses the brains of the ass and the heart of the white rabbit, and is therefore devoid of the wisdom to see its obligation to the nation, and devoid of the courage to perform its obligation even if it could see it.

Mr. Hoover, of course, can be grateful to the jackass rabbits for the pleasant Easter surprise of re-election to the presidency which they have given him, but the rest of the country has nothing to thank the jackass rabbits for.

The jackass rabbits have become a pest in Washington, a scourge, as they have been heretofore in some other parts of the country, and the only thing for the citizenship of the nation to do is to adopt the usual measures in dealing with jackass rabbits, and have a jackass rabbit drive at the election this fall, and get as many as possible of these destructive ani-

'Girl Raffles' Hunted in Dorchester Breaks

Dorchester's crime wave rolled over a breakwater of public protest today.

A series of depredations by a blonde girl Raffles, two new burglaries and an unsuccessful attempt were reported in the Fields Corner division jurisdiction, where yesterday a trio of gunmen held up the Codman sq. branch of the Dorchester Savings Bank and escaped with $5000.

The new crimes were reported on the heels of an official protest on police conditions by the Dorchester Board of Trade and while Commissioner Hultman and Supt. Crowley, in a two-hour conference, were reaching a decision to send flying squadrons into the district.

Five or six homes in the St. Marks rd. section have been cleaned out of valuables during the absence of families by a blonde girl, about 20.

Her confederate is a young man who drives an auto and parks near a house where she first rings the bell for several minutes to make sure no one is home and then enters by means of a false key.

A woman resident of St. Marks rd. observed her in one instance and surprised her inside the home of a neighbor. Clothing, money and jewelry have been stolen.

In one of the two new burglaries reported, the criminal was inconsiderate enough to jimmy a window at the home of Patrolman Patrick Keane, 147 Elmer rd., and steal a watch and ring valued at $75.

Entrance was also made by jimmying a window at the home of Mrs. Helen Kelley, 67 Hildale st., where a revolver, fountain pen and jewelry were taken.

An attempt was made during the night to break into the office of garage of John Brown, in Morrill st., but a stout lock foiled the burglars.

GARNER IN PLEA ENDS 'REVOLT' ON TAX

House, Cheering Speaker, Votes Levies of $168,500,000; Autos, Furs, Jewels Hit

BULLETIN

Washington, March 29 (INS)—With harmony restored, the House today began voting new taxes to replace the defeated sales taxes.

In succession, it approved a tax of 10 per cent on cosmetics and perfumes, estimated to yield $25,000,000 a year, and a 10 per cent tax on jewelry, to yield $15,000,000 a year.

A 3 per cent tax was imposed on automobiles and motorcycles, 2 per cent on trucks and 1 per cent on accessories, to yield $57,000,000.

Without debate the following levies were voted.

Furs, 10 per cent, $20,000,000 in revenue; sporting goods and cameras, 10 per cent, $4,000,000; chewing gum, 5 per cent, $3,000,000; candy, 5 per cent, $12,000,000; radios, phonographs, 5 per cent, $11,000,000; yachts, motor boats and canoes costing over $15, $500,000; matches, 4 cents 1000, $1,000,000.

Washington, March 29 (INS)—In a cheering mass the House of Representatives rose today and pledged Speaker John N. Garner that it will vote taxes to balance the federal budget and thus preserve the credit of the government at home and abroad.

More than 90 per cent of the members, both Democrats and Republicans rose to their feet when the Speaker put the question during a dramatic appeal to the patriotism of members after he had warned of a panic if this budget is not balanced.

"That ought to restore to the American people confidence in our country," said Garner, observing the demonstration.

"We may have differences in our hearts, but we are patriotic."

The House, unruly and disorganized for days, was transformed by the unprecedented appeal of the Speaker into an audience not unlike those seen in religious services.

Within three hours the House had voted $168,500,000 in new taxes.

The first real opposition came from friends of the automobile industry but they coul dnot stem the tide. The House voted a three per cent tax on automobiles, two per cent on trucks and one per cent on accessories and tires.

The new taxes, for the most part, were styled "luxury" levies.

The Speaker's quiet, fervid op-

IRISH LEADERS CALL FOR 'FIGHT TO THE DEATH'

NO SURRENDER, SAYS CHIEF OF SINN FEIN

De Valera and Council Busy Preparing Reply to Britain's Warning Note

By LINTON WELLS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Dublin, March 28 (INS)—The people of the Irish Free State were called upon today to give up their lives if necessary rather than surrender to Great Britain in the coming battle over abolition of the oath of allegiance to the British crown.

Republican leaders carried their campaign to the people while the Free State Council was in session, considering President Eamon De Valera's reply to London's note of warning.

Brian O'Higgins, president of the Sinn Fein organization, urged the people to "continue your hard fight for freedom" in a speech at Limerick.

"Follow the example of your comrades who never compromised and who died rather than accept the status of British citizens under a treaty of surrender," he said.

"NEVER SURRENDER"

Speaking at Athlone, M. J. Kennedy, prominent Fianna Fail deputy, voiced similar sentiments.

"We are going to win the fight," he said, "because there is no going back to the begging alternative of surrender which was the headline of the past ten years."

The executive council adjourned its first session today at 2:30 p. m.

The form of the reply to Great Britain apparently is causing some difficulty though it is certain it will reiterate De Valera's stand that abolition of the oath of allegiance and retention of the land annuities are domestic questions to be settled by the Irish people alone.

DE VALERA UNAFRAID

"Great Britain cannot frighten us," De Valera told International News Service. "The Irish people have learned in the past 10 years the fallacy of surrendering their rights when threatened.

"Our paramount consideration is to secure internal peace and we intend to have it by living up to the mandate given us in the last election."

As the hour approaches for delivery of the Free State government's reply to Great Britain the Irish press is carrying flaming denunciations of "British Imperialism" and assuring De Valera of the people's "whole-hearted support" in the battle to free Ireland of British domination.

Mass meetings are being held throughout the country every day.

British Labor Party Backs Irish Drive

Blackpool, Eng., March 29 (INS)—The conference of the Independent Labor Party today unanimously adopted a resolution calling upon the British government to recognize the rights of the Irish people to decide their own future.

A delegate from Northern Ireland, M. Gatwood, of Belfast, joined others in denouncing the British government's stand in demanding maintenance of ties by the State oath of allegiance to the crown and annual payment of the land annuities.

SAWYER TO RUN INDEPENDENT

Rep. Roland D. Sawyer of Ware, who filed nomination papers as a delegate-at-large to the Democratic convention today wrote to Sec. Cook and asked that the words "Independent Smith Delegate" be placed after his name on the ballot.

The letter said:

"I am making my campaign as a political principle, the great American principle of independence. I am running because I protest against hostilism. Because I protest against a chairman of a state committee of my political party or any political party that soever, to dictate to the free voters for whom they shall vote.

"My use of the name 'Smith' is not a use of the name which requires his consent to have it printed as I have used it. I have used the name 'Smith' because the chairman of the Democratic party in this state has selected, by an outrageous rule of hossism, an official Alfred E. Smith slate.

"Had he selected an official Franklin D. Roosevelt slate or an official Newton D. Baker slate my designation would have been 'Independent Roosevelt Delegate' or 'Independent Baker Delegate' as the case might be.

"I therefore contend I am within my rights for which I stand and I ask that the designation 'Independent Smith Delegate' be printed on the ballot following my name, as is provided by law and which has hitherto been done without question."

A snowstorm delayed them and gave Wallandi, with heavy snow a foot deep all around his prison, two hours more to reflect on the struggles of men while we might reflect on the kind of civilization that disgraces itself by science by making it the servant of ancient capital punishment and brutality.

That which our heroic "Devil Dog" Marines and all the power of our government could not do appears to have been done by a creature so small you could not see it with the naked eye.

Sandino, leader of Nicaragua's insurgent band, is laid up with a violent attack of malaria, under a doctor's care, unable to ride or shoot. And he is not the first victim of the tiny germs that anopheles mosquitoes implant in your blood.

Some historians believe that malaria, distributed by mosquitoes from the marshes around Rome, wiped out Roman power of resistance, making it easy for a barbarian from the North, in furs, to sit on the throne of the Caesars.

Seen under a powerful microscope in the Rockefeller Institute the malaria germ looks like a finger ring with a purple stone set in it.

Quinine, one of the few absolute specifics known to medicine, conquers malaria, but, for a long time Protestant Britain would not permit the use of quinine because it had been discovered by Catholics in South America and named for a Catholic saint.

Such is the power of religious prejudice.

The "Red Star," which represents Russia's army, predicts a war soon, between this country and Japan. It is to "grow out" of the Manchurian troubles between Japan and China.

Russia knows as little about this country as we do about Russia, and talks about this country as foolishly as we do of Russia, which is saying a great deal.

Russia's prediction of war for us is encouraging, because it is sure to be unfounded.

Tosses His Hoarded Cash Out Window to Save It

Williamson, W. Va., March 29 (AP)—George Hall, a laborer, threw his life's savings of $4,000 out a window last night.

It happened like this: A couple of robbers heard he was keeping his money at home so they called and tried to get him to tell where it was hidden.

Hall refused so they bit him over the head with a chair and proceeded to search the house.

As soon as they left the room Hall took the money from under the floor and threw it out the window. After the robbers had gone he recovered the money and took it to bed with him.

Today he put it in a bank.

FARM LOANS ANGER HYDE

Washington, March 29 (AP)—Secretary Hyde said today that as a loan agent, the Department of Agriculture was the "prize boob in the history of finance."

He made his statement in explaining that the department was handling agricultural loans instead of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation "because the corporation is doing business on a business basis and loans that are now being made under the name of agriculture cannot by the furthest stretch be called good business."

He said the department now is lending "more money on thinner security and sustaining more losses than ever before in the history of money lending in the world."

The department has loaned over $8,000,000 in the last three weeks from the $50,000,000 assigned it by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Act. Applications for additional loans are arriving at the rate of about 5000 a day.

Missouri's Delegates to Vote for Jim Reed

St. Louis, March 29 (INS)—Missouri Democratic state convention today had elected 54 delegates to the Chicago national convention with instructions to vote for former Senator James A. Reed as long as he has a chance to get the nomination for President.

Missouri will have 36 votes. Delegates under the instructions go back Governor Roosevelt if Reed fails to gain after several ballots.

Cross Would Divide Connecticut's Vote

Hartford, Conn., March 29 (AP)—Gov. Wilbur L. Cross urged today that the Connecticut delegation to the Democratic National Convention divide its vote between Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Alfred E. Smith. He advocated this course in the hope of stopping factional discord over selecting delegates to the state convention.

"It is of great importance to the party in Connecticut," he said, "to present a united front in the fall elections."

HOOVER TO VETO FURTHER BONUS

Washington, March 29 (AP)—President Hoover announced formally today he was "absolutely opposed to the enactment by Congress of additional soldiers' bonus legislation," and indicated he would veto such a bill if passed.

Speaking at his regular press conference, the President stated that informal polls of the House of Representatives have "created apprehension in the country" that a further bonus bill calling for an outlay of about $2,000,000 would be passed.

Bank Robbery Nets Bandits $54 After All-Night Work

Jenkinsburg, Ga., March 29 (AP)—Bandits went to a lot of trouble to rob the bank of Jenkinsburg of $54.

First, they called at the home of Cashier H. C. Childs, held up the family, bound his two young sons, Warren and Billy, and then forced Mr. Childs to accompany them to the bank.

The time lock prevented opening the vault, but the robbers found $50 in pennies in the tills and $4 besides. They took it and drove Childs home again.

There were four, so the night's work netted the bandits $13.50 each, less the wear and tear of their automobile and the cost of their masks.

Near First Fight at Roosevelt Rally

A rousing Roosevelt rally in Charlestown, with 600 in attendance, nearly ended in a fist fight between City Councillor Thomas H. Green, Roosevelt delegate, and former Rep. John McCarthy, Smith supporter, last night.

Green presided at the meeting, which was held in the Lexington st. ward room, and he was interrupted by McCarthy several times. Short, harsh words resulted and Green left the platform to meet McCarthy on the floor. He was restrained, and police, answering a riot call, ended the trouble.

Two Plead Guilty of Robbing Prof. Arnold

Pleading guilty to armed robbery of Prof. Prescott Arnold of Harvard College, Genaro Immerso, 17, and John Murphy, 15, both of Windsor st., Cambridge, were held in $10,000 for the grand jury by Judge Counihan in East Cambridge court today.

Police testified Murphy held a gun to Prof. Arnold's head while Immerso struck him with a slingshot and rifled his pockets of a small amount of money.

BACK ROOSEVELT FOR PATRONAGE, SAYS M'GLUE

Former Democratic Chairman Appeals for N. Y. Governor at Mayor Curley's Forum

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Massachusetts should stand solidly behind Franklin D. Roosevelt for President, if only from the standpoint of patronage.

Charles H. McGlue, former chairman of the Democratic State committee, so advised a large and enthusiastic crowd today at Mayor Curley's Roosevelt Forum, 333 Washington st.

The mayor himself, despite a heavy cold which caused his physician to cancel his attendance at rallies last night, was again on the firing line for the New York Governor, pointing out that the issue at the coming primaries is "not a complimentary vote for an individual, but relief of depression."

HALF THE TWO-THIRDS

If Massachusetts and Pennsylvania are loyal to Roosevelt in the primaries, April 26, the aspirant will have more than one-half of the two-thirds convention votes necessary for nomination, Mayor Curley said.

McGlue said it was most important that Massachusetts "not go into the convention discredited." Only one man in the history of the Democratic party (Champ Clark) ever went into the convention with a majority of delegates without getting the nomination, he added.

Joseph J. Hurley of the school committee, a member of the Roosevelt slate, said that former Mayor Fitzgerald, Smith delegate, had asked State Committee Chairman Donahue not to name him on the Smith slate. He said Fitzgerald so informed him yesterday.

"I'd like to ask Donahue how many names on the Daisy Dozen are there without their consent," he continued.

CALLS FOR SECOND CHOICE

"I wonder why 'McAdoo'-Coolidge was put on the Smith slate." (Sen. Marcus Coolidge, Smith delegate, voted 103 ballots for McAdoo in 1924.)

"Coolidge was elected junior Senator of Massachusetts by the grace of God and Santa Claus," Hurley went on.

He called upon Donahue, "the loud-speaker of the Smith slate," to reveal his second choice—"if it is Garner of Texas, Byrd of Virginia or Baker of Ohio and the League of Nations."

"We have no second choice; we're with Roosevelt to the limit."

Roosevelt rallies will be held tonight at the Municipal Building in South Boston; at the Teachers' College, Huntington ave., and in the William E. Russell and Mary Hemenway schools. Mayor Curley will speak at the first two places.

WOMAN IS HELD IN CONTEMPT

Mrs. Lida M. Beal of Webster pk., Needham, was adjudged in contempt of court today by Judge Harold P. Williams in Superior Court for failure to pay $9572.60 of a $10,000 loan made to her by Mrs. Lavinia Nelson, 70, a lodging house proprietor of Appleton st., South End.

After judgment, Mrs. Beal was in custody of Deputy Sheriff Charles Barnett for three hours before being bailed in $5000 for appearance Thursday, when sentence will be imposed.

Repayment of the loan was ordered some time ago after a hearing in which it was testified by the elderly landlady that Mrs. Beal approached her for a loan of $18,000 on which 12 per cent interest was promised.

The Needham woman said, according to Mrs. Nelson, that she was in the business of lending money to wealthy women in anticipation of their allowances from their husbands.

Mrs. Nelson gave Mrs. Beal $10,000, her life savings, the former testified, and when Mrs. Beal gave a check for $9572.60, the balance due, Mrs. Nelson tried to deposit it and was informed the check was not backed by funds.

She received a gash over her right eye. Her companion, Mrs. Stoddard Atwood of Bakersfield, Cal., was not injured. They were en route to New York.

It was suggested that the Hinckley Rendering Co. plant be torn down and the beach constructed on its site.

Pleading guilty to a charge of keeping and exposing liquor Pietro Gaglioni, 47, of Southern st., Cranston, R. I., paid a fine of $100 in Quincy Court today. A companion, Tony Gici of Providence was found not guilty.

The men were arrested in Weymouth after police had seen their automobile passing daily through the town during the early morning hours. In the rear of the car was found 75 gallons of alcohol.

ROOSEVELT, JR., ASKS PLEDGED MAINE SLATE

Will Make Personal Appeal to Democratic State Convention for Father's Candidacy

Portland, Me., March 29 (INS)—Announcing he was here to seek a pledged delegation for his father, James Roosevelt, son of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, Democratic presidential candidate, arrived here today and immediately went into conference with State Democratic leaders.

He will make a personal appeal at the state convention tonight.

Thomas J. Heslin, of Lowell, Mass., also talked with the Maine Democratic leaders in behalf of a pledged Roosevelt slate. It was believed here that Heslin was working for Mayor James M. Curley of Boston in the interest of Governor Roosevelt.

Edward C. Moran, Democratic candidate for Governor in Maine in 1928 and 1930 has publicly declared for ex-Governor Alfred E. Smith, Smith easily won a state-wide newspaper poll, running better than two to one ahead of Roosevelt.

United States Senator Clarence C. Dill, of Washington, will be the keynote speaker at the convention. Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, former governor of Wyoming, also will speak. Fred H. Lancaster, of Auburn, will be chairman.

The Republican state convention will convene Thursday of this week in City Hall. It is expected that it will pledge delegates to President Hoover.

A Suitable Symbol for Insurgent Democrats

mals in a corral, and proceed to knock them politically on their silly heads.

NATURALLY, the result of this gift will be the re-election of Mr. Hoover, and that is not pleasant to contemplate. But anything is better than having the government of our great country in the control of jackass rabbits.

General Grant once said that no matter in what a desperate plight the Republicans might be, they need not despair, because the Democrats, true to their party emblem, would always do some jackass thing to give the Republicans the victory.

Until quite lately, the regular Democrats in Congress, under the able leadership of Speaker Garner, were making such a commendable record as to seem wholly to belie this statement.

Then came the great plague of jackass rabbits, like the great plagues in the Bible, or like the seven years of famine, or the seven years itch, or the great wind in Ireland—something always to be remembered and deplored—something that will go down in history as the ultimate of affliction, the acme of imbecility, something to prove that after all General Grant was emphatically and incontrovertibly RIGHT.

WHAT the jackasses did not do to re-establish the Republican party and to re-elect Mr. Hoover to the presidency, the jackass rabbits did.

They ran out on Speaker Garner, and believe me, brother, a jackass rabbit may not be able to see very far ahead, he may not be able to hear the people's voice, even with those long ears of his,—he certainly is not able to think,—he has proved that. But gosh, how he can run.

They ran out in more jackassinine directions than had ever been known to exist.

They brought forward a greater variety of jackassinine legislation than had ever been presented in any legislative body in the history of the world.

They ran amuck mentally, morally, financially, politically, and patriotically.

They made the Congress discreditable, their party ridiculous, and themselves contemptible.

They made the Republican party seem wise and good and sound and sane and loyal and altogether admirable.

They made Hoover look like the savior of his country from the fools and fanatics.

YES, General Grant WAS right.

Perhaps the Democrats WILL always do the wrong thing, and perhaps it is NOT safe to entrust the country to their hands.

Perhaps it is best to have only two party groups in country,—the Republicans and the Bolsheviks—and two party emblems,—the wise old elephant, laughing inwardly, and the pink eyed, pinheaded, rattled, and riotous JACKASS RABBIT.

Boy Who Ate Piece of Pie Heard Round World Is Happy

MILLIONS KNOW THAT CRUSTY SOUND NOW

But No One Is as Happy as Lad Whose Jaws Set Record; No Soup Test

New York, March 29 (AP)—Charles Van Bergen is the lad who ate the piece of pie heard 'round the world.

Master Van Bergen, 14, ate the pie last night for the advancement of radio science and the edification of millions of persons who otherwise might have lived and died without ever having heard the cacophony of crust crunching.

One listener reported today:

"I don't pretend to be a judge of such things, but I do say you'll go far and listen long to hear a piece of pie eaten as neatly as that piece."

JAWS SPEED UP

Master Van Bergen never had eaten pie into a microphone before, yet experts remarked enthusiastically of his technique.

At the signal from the program director, Van Bergen bit into the pie briskly and unflinchingly. First he chewed legato. Gradually, as he realized what this thing meant to his public, he quickened the tempo until his jaws were working at an estimated metronome speed of 84, or, as the phonograph people would say, about 78 revolutions per minute.

Electrodes were attached to his face, picking up the rhythm of "A Boy Eating a Piece of Pie," as the number was called. From the electrodes the noise went out over the network. Thus it reached the sailor on the bounding main, the lonely trapper in the northlands and the customers gathered in the hot-dog but on U. S.-112, just out of South Bend, Ind.

GREAT PIE FUTURE

Only a person who has sailed the bounding main can realize what it means to a lonesome sailor to tune in on the radio and hear a boy punishing a piece of pie.

At the end of the broadcast it was freely predicted that Master Van Bergen may look forward to a rosy pie-eating future.

"This is a start in the right direction," he said. "At least, it is a start in some direction."

'POET' BOYER'S WIFE SPURNED KILLS SELF

Suicide of Pfeiffer, Greenwich Village Songster, Recalls Unfrocked Minister's Loves

New York, March 29—Arnold E. Pfeiffer, Greenwich Village favorite and self-styled "poet of a thousand loves," wooed death for the second time today and was embraced.

The Washington sq. troubador hanged himself quite successfully by the neck on the porch of his bungalow in the Woodstock artists' colony near Kingston.

Back in 1927 he courted the hooded spectre after a Boston beauty, Mrs. Lucile Macomber Boyer, had spurned his love. He chose Mrs. Boyer's Greenwich Village apartment as a fitting place to slash himself, but death hardly noticed him on that occasion and he recovered and went about singing his ballads.

Unrequited love played the "heavy" in Pfeiffer's life, and in the live set Mrs. Boyer and her husband, who was Francis B. Boyer, Boston's famous unfrocked "shiek pastor" of the fashionable Brimmer st., Church of the Advent.

Boyer's first wife was a niece of Mrs. Jack Gardner. She divorced him after Mrs. Bernice Boucher of the Back Bay, learning that Boyer was a married philanderer, killed herself with poison.

The Episcopal church unfrocked Boyer and he turned to Lucile Macomber, a Brookline girl, for pity. She married him and regretted it, but she never found any consolation in Pfeiffer or in his ballads.

DEATH DELAYS BOSTON TRAIN

The sudden death of William C. Brooks, 42, of Braintree, on a Boston-bound New Haven train, caused a delay of 15 minutes on the Braintree-Quincy branch of the railroad during the rush hour today.

Brooks boarded the train, which left South Braintree shortly after 8:30, at Braintree apparently in good health.

When the conductor reached his seat to take up his ticket, between Quincy and Wollaston, he found the man to be dead. The train was stopped at Wollaston and the Quincy police ambulance summoned, but Brooks was beyond aid. The body was taken off the train to await the arrival of an undertaker. Several inbound trains were delayed.

The deceased was head of the Brooks Piano Company of Summer st., Boston, and was one of the most promient citizens of Braintree.

GIRL TELLS OF HER TORTURES

New York, March 29 (INS)—Tortures inflicted on a 12-year-old orphan girl were further related by her today when Eva Novakowski, Long Island City, resumed her testimony in Queens County Court.

She accused her foster mother and foster grandmother of beating her every day for nearly a week because she would not confess a theft she didn't commit.

Mrs. Louise Vogelsang, 36, and Mrs. Antoinette Labenkowski, with whom the girl lives, are on trial on charges of assault. Eva said $3 disappeared one day.

"Mrs. Vogelsang said if I didn't tell where I put the money, she would beat me and put me in hot water," the girl said in a trembling voice. So I told a lie and said I stole it.

"They took off my clothes and beat me with a strap. They did that every days for five days."

Muskrat Attacks Melrose Woman; Slain by Police

A large muskrat which invaded the fashionable Rowe st. section of Melrose, lost his life today at the hands of two policemen after he had refused to allow a woman visitor to enter a home.

The muskrat was first seen on the front porch at 132 Rowe st., when the visitor arived to call on Mrs. Werner E. Von Klock.

Screams of the woman visitor as the muskrat, mistaken by her for a sewer rat, made a dash at the caller, attracted neighbors and police were called on the telephone.

Patrolmen George Woolley and Harold Wolley found the animal still on the porch, to where it had returned after its threatening sally at the visitor—who fled in terror.

When the officers approached the muskrat again took the offensive, but the policemen, each armed with a sidewalk scrapscraper, pinned the six-pound animal in a corner and killed it.

PROSECUTOR OF CAPONE QUIZZED

Washington, March 29 (AP)—George E. Q. Johnson, district attorney at Chicago, was questioned today by a Senate judiciary subcommittee about the prosecution of Al Capone.

After more than an hour in executive session, Chairman Borah said it dealt largely with the reported agreement under which Capone was to have been sentenced to two and half years in return for pleading guilty of income tax evasion.

Judge James H. Wilkerson, whose nomination for Circuit Court is now before the committee, overturned the purported agreement and sentenced Capone to 11 years in the penitentiary. Borah said Johnson had been asked on whose instructions the agreement was made, but would not reveal the answer.

Both urging residents of Hyde Park cannot understand why they are compelled to pay $1.45 a 1000 cubic feet for gas while neighbors supplied by the Boston company pay only $1.

"If the Boston gas company can serve Weston and make money it could serve Hyde Park as well," said Welsh.

HUSBAND HURLS 'LIE' AS WIFE SOBS IN TRIAL

A bitter quarrel featured the divorce suit today between Mrs. Rosa Schumer of Warren st., Allston, and her husband, Oscar, in Suffolk Probate Court.

Schumer, acting as his own attorney, cross-examined his wife at the conclusion of her direct testimony, and when she declared she did not know what began the quarrel between them he shouted:

"You lie!"

Judge Dolan interposed to warn Schumer to be a gentleman.

"I can't be a gentleman under these circumstances," he replied.

Mrs. Schumer divorced him on grounds of cruel and abusive treatment and testified that on the day she left him, December 14, 1931, he beat her, pulled her hair and punched her jaw so hard as to leave a mark.

"Three days before," she continued, "he sent me to get him some liquor, and when I couldn't get it he said I didn't go, called me a liar and struck me.

"I was working six weeks after our marriage. My husband never worked three months from the time we were married in October, 1928."

When her husband began his cross-examination, Mrs. Schumer burst into tears, and Judge Dolan halted the trial until she recovered her composure.

In his own defense, Schumer stated that he worked whenever he got a chance, and that they were saving money before they went housekeeping. He claimed he took their baby to his home in Allen st., West End, and bathed and fed the infant from the time it was born.

Mrs. Schumer won her decree and custody of the baby.

$20,000 FIRE IN IPSWICH

Ipswich, March 29—One man was overcome by smoke, 15 roomers were driven to the street, and Eagles' hall and a restaurant were destroyed in a fire which broke out in the restaurant early today, resulting in three alarms. The loss was estimated at $20,000.

Help was called from the Hamilton and Rowley fire departments and the private fire department of the Russell T. Crane estate at Ipswich Neck.

The fire was discovered by Patrolman Byard Horsman. He had just tried the doors on the Ipswich depot when he was attracted by the sound of an explosion.

Suddenly flames began shooting from Russell's restaurant. The fire broke out in the kitchen and spread rapidly through the building to the second floor, where roomers in the Hayes Tavern were asleep.

John Monahan, 40, janitor there, was overcome by smoke and was carried out by Patrolman Horsman.

WEDDING ENDED LOVE, HE SAYS

She was affectionate before marriage, but after the ceremony and she was sure of him—oh, how she changed, Jack M. Harris, 27, a Boston radio research engineer, testified today in Middlesex probate court, where he won an uncontested divorce.

Harris said he married Barbara E. Harris of Watertown in June, 1930, at Portland, Me., and they lived together in Boston and Cambridge, separating in October of last fall.

The realization that she did not want him came finally a few weeks after the separation, he said, when she had him arrested as a trespasser when he called to attempt a reconciliation.

Harris testified his wife struck him in a restaurant and once slapped his face when he refused to turn off the radio.

Nuns Flee Blackstone Fire; Priest Is Hero

Blackstone, March 29—Ten nuns were forced to flee, a priest ran through smoke and flame to rescue sacred vessels and with scores of firemen narrowly escaped injury today when fire destroyed St. Paul's Catholic Church with a loss of $200,000.

Fanned by a 35-mile wind, sparks were swept nearly two miles over the Rhode Island line and into Woonsocket.

Other showers of sparks threatened five houses near the church. Miss Ellen O'Riley, 70, was carried to safety by relatives, from one of them.

The nuns, members of St. Joseph's Order, were in the convent adjoining the church when sheets of flame that leaped across an areaway aroused them.

After they left their quarters the nuns made their way to the rectory, out of the path of the flying sparks, and worked through the morning to prepare coffee for the ice-coated firemen.

Soon after the blaze was discovered and the interior of the church had become a raging furnace, Rev. Thomas P. Smith, pastor, made his dash to save the sacred vessels.

He had left the church only a few minutes when the rear wall collapsed and piled debris over the route he had taken.

The firemen were endangered when the 85-foot spire toppled, sending the heavy, gold cross to the street and showering fire apparatus as it shattered.

The fire, according to Chief Augustus Cote of Woonsocket, who took charge, started near the basement heater.

It gained such headway before discovery that only the stone outer shell of the church was left standing when firemen got the blaze under control.

70 STUDENTS QUIT KENTUCKY

Frankfort, Ky., March 29 (AP)—Half way successful in their visit to Kentucky, a group of approximately 70 Eastern college and university students today headed homeward from where they came last Friday to make a sociological survey of the troubled Kentucky coal fields.

Their Easter holidays ended, the students boarded their two special buses with the announced intention of getting back to class.

Some of them were ejected from Kentucky last Friday and again Saturday, and four were put out Sunday.

Bell County authorities, explaining why they would not allow the students to enter the coal fields, said they had information the students had been in contact with Communistic organizations. The students denied this, claiming their only intention was to study conditions among the miners.

Frankfort, Ky., March 29 (AP)—A stop in Washington to urge a Congressional inquiry into conditions in the Southeastern Kentucky coal fields was announced today as the next step of the group of Eastern college students, who came here to investigate conditions in the Kentucky coal fields.

MOSCOW WIVES RIOT AGAINST $3.50 BUTTER

By EDWARD L. DEUSS.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Berlin, March 29 (INS)—Unrest among the Soviet masses, resulting in a wholesale exodus of Ukrainian peasants and the death of scores at the hands of frontier guards, has had a serious repercussion in Moscow in the form of food riots.

Information received from unimpeachable authority today told of a virtual revolt by Moscow housewives against prohibitive prices for butter and sugar, precipitating summary action by mounted police.

The particular Moscow riots revealed today occurred when housewives flocked to government stores in the hope of obtaining, at somewhere near reasonable prices, such staples as butter and sugar.

The general food shortage in Soviet Russia has left thousands of families without these necessaries for four months. Despite their possession of butter coupons and ration cards, housewives have been obliged to place dry bread on their tables.

What precipitated the butter riot was the fact that the Soviet butter trust, with headquarters in the center of the Soviet capital, announced recently there would be a sale of butter on a certain day.

Dressing warmly in the resigned anticipation of having to wait in line for several hours, housewives swarmed to the butter trust. To their amazement they found that the "sale" consisted of offerings of butter at 7 rubles a pound, approximately $3.50. The usual prices—notwithstanding the fact that none was available—had been 2 rubles, 50 kopeks (about $1.25).

Incensed at this imposition, the women smashed the windows of the shop, demolished the interior and rough-housed the panic-stricken clerks.

The other riot occurred at the sugar trust, when housewives who had stood in line, some for 12 hours, found that the supply was sold out.

Flowers and Gold Presented Bishop

Manchester, N. H., March 29—Bishop William F. Anderson of Boston, tendered a farewell reception by 600 New Hampshire Methodists, last night was presented a gift of gold and flowers. He will retire in May.

Officer Clamps on Headlock and Holds Thief Suspect

They are going in for headlocks in the Boston police department now.

Patrolman John Kowlick of the Joy st. station demonstrated his wrestling ability on a man attempting to escape from a West End store early today, with the result he was held for breaking and entering.

The captive, who gave the name of Benjamin Weinberg of Green st., West End, was held in $5000 on Judge Goode in Municipal court.

Kowlick's opportunity to use the headlock came when he discovered Weinberg's head thrust through a cellar window of Benjamin Spack's store at 61 North Russell st.

When he passed the store a short time previously his attention had been attracted by the ringing of a cash register bell inside. Peering through the window, he saw a man behind the counter emptying the register.

Kowlick called the station and Sergt. Edward L. Kelly and Officers Enos and Gavin, armed with shotguns and bulletproof vests, were rushed to his aid. Kowlick went to the rear and finding Weinberg trying to climb out of the cellar window, held his head until the other officers captured him.

On the way back to the station the officers picked up Theodore Molesky of Stanford st., because of a suspicious bulging at his waist. Investigation revealed five cartons of cigarettes, which he was charged with stealing, and held for trial. The owner of the cigarettes was not determined.

TOLD WIFE OF HER 'RIVAL'

The day he returned from a vacation in Canada, Laurence F. Simpson of Lynn told his wife he'd met a girl on the boat and fallen in love with her, Mrs. Harriet Simpson, one-time Lynn English high school belle who cloned with Simpson when he was the school's star athlete and she was 18, testified today.

She told this incident and many others to Judge White in Salem probate court, where she is seeking a divorce.

She produced a photograph of the girl on the boat. It was given her, she said, by her husband on the day of his homecoming, when he requested her to leave and make room for the new object of his affections.

Miss Eleanor Wright testified she heard Simpson's avowal of love for the girl on the boat. While Miss Wright was on the stand the court studied the photograph.

"Do you think Simpson was in earnest when he said he fell in love with a creature like that?" asked the court, holding the picture aloft.

"I do," replied Miss Wright. The court reserved decision.

Vegetable Luncheon Appropriate Now

Vegetable Tips Are Timely in Spring

In the spring, the young man's fancies may be turning to thoughts of love, but his sister's are turning to thoughts of spring suits and to a more slender silhouette before the bathing season is with us. And, since they tell us rather inelegantly, that "all fat goes in at the mouth," it behooves all of the "would-be-thins" to carefully consider the daily food quota.

ADD FEW CALORIES

Vegetables, we know, not only contain elements of special importance to our systems in the spring but (unless smothered in butter and cream sauces) add few calories to our menus. Some people are fortunate enough to be born with so keen a taste for vegetables that they honestly prefer an all-vegetable lunch to a planked steak.

I'm choosey about my vegetables, I'll admit, and can't say that I enthuse about some of the "vegetable plates" I've been served—but the vegetable luncheon illustrated today would leave me no cause for complaint.

The tomatoes are hollowed out a little and stuffed with creamed crabmeat and baked until tender. The carrots are boiled and diced, or purchased all diced in convenient tins, and glazed by cooking them 10 minutes or so in a shallow frying pan in 2 tbsps. melted butter and 2 tbsps. sugar. Turn them frequently in the mixture until they begin to shine. One cup of left-over peas gives an attractive addition of color.

COOK MANY WAYS

The mushrooms may either be fried, broiled or baked and, while truly delicious in flavor, have very little food value. I think I prefer them done in the frying pan. First wash them and, if they are at all tough, peel thin and remove the stems (save them for gravy or sauces). Put ¼ cup of butter in a heavy frying pan, put in the mushrooms and cook them for about 5 minutes or until tender.

They may be arranged in a glass serving dish on toast points and a little gravy made with the liquid left in the pan. For a cream gravy, add 1 tbsp. of flour to 1 tbsp. of the butter in which the mushrooms were fried, and when smooth add 1 cup of top milk or thin cream and cook till smooth. Season to taste.

VEGETABLES HEADLINE SPRING LUNCHEON

Tomatoes stuffed with crab meat, glazed diced carrots and baked mushrooms combine to make an ideal luncheon. Why not try this vegetable luncheon some day.

Two Sausage Suggestions

Do try those favorite sausages, fresh from the farm in New England, with eggs, fried apples, griddle cakes and vegetables of all sorts. Tender roasting cuts of fresh pork go into the making of this famous sausage—and most important, the meat is chopped. Try it for stuffing onions, baked in cream sauce. And this smacking good combination:

SAUSAGE WITH BANANAS

Prick each sausage link in several places with a steel tined fork. Arrange them in a cold frying pan and cook slowly. Pour off the excess fat. Increase heat, and brown links. Remove to a hot serving plate. Peel four or more firm bananas, split them lengthwise, roll them lightly in flour and fry them a golden brown in some of the sausage drippings, allowing two minutes for browning each side. Remove with a spatula and place around the sausage.

Awards Made for Best Letters

Bridge Party to Lee School

On Saturday, April 16, Frank Archer, Sr., of the Moxie Company, will entertain 60 members of the Martha Lee Cooking Classes, at a card party in the new Bridge Den, which he has built right inside the big Moxie plant out at Heath st., Roxbury.

This Bridge Den is really a beautiful log cabin, with a great open fireplace at one end, flanked by easy chairs and divans. Fifteen bridge tables fill the center of the cabin, and at the other end is the piano, radio, kitchen and dressing room. A log cabin bungalow all complete in itself, right inside this model plant!

TICKETS NECESSARY

There'll be a tour of inspection through the plant, first, then two hours of bridge, and then—the most interesting part of the party—the refreshments and prizes.

Admission to the party will be by ticket only, and these may be obtained by writing promptly to Martha Lee, 5 Winthrop sq. They are limited to the members of the mid-winter cooking classes, which graduated last week. There'll be another party later, for the spring classes.

PARKING SPACE

Please don't send for a ticket unless you play bridge and unless you are sure that you can be at the Moxie plant, by 1 o'clock on Saturday, April 16. There will be exactly 60 tickets issued and we want to have each of the 60 chairs occupied.

To reach the Moxie plant from Park st. subway, take an Egleston sq. or Roxbury Crossing car, or any car that goes up Tremont st. Get off at Heath st. and walk around the corner to the Moxie plant. Plenty of parking space, if you drive.

Soup-and-Cracker Tips

There never breathed a man or boy who didn't like to crumble crackers in his soup. So how to keep them from it is often Mother's problem. Well, here's a way. Crumble the crackers in before the soup comes to the table. Whether a tourenn is used or the soup is brought to the table in soup bowls, a few crumbled crackers floating lightly on the top will win an enthusiastic "thanks" from the male members of the family! (echoed by Martha Lee — inveterate cracker crumbler.)

Use soda crackers or the little round butter wafers spread lightly with cheese as a welcome addition to hot soups. Gives more "body" to the meal—with practically no extra trouble.

A Quick Hard Sauce

For a quick hard sauce for hot puddings, stir together one-half a banana, one tsp. of lemon juice and enough confectioner's sugar to thicken. Add chopped nuts if desired.

Speedy Apple Pie Possible

The Cheshire Cat and I have a lot in common today—a smile that won't come off. For I've just scraped acquaintance with something new in the food world.

Do you ever think "I'll make an apple pie for dinner!" and then when you recall that apples are none too good at this season and it's a long job to peel and core and slice them, do you often change your mind and decide on maybe a hurry-up shortcake or sumpin? Then you'll be as glad as I am to hear that tart, delicious, quick-cooking apples now come all peeled, cored, and sliced, just ready to pop into the usual nine-inch pie plate.

This is one of the newer of the wonderful frosted foods, and I know it's going to be one of the most popular.

These new sliced apples (and there are 22 ounces in a big package that sells for approximately 25c) can be used in any way that you would fresh apples. Do try them in Apple Dumplings, and in Brown Betty, as well as in pies. The directions for a perfect pie are on the bottom of the package of sliced apples—and if you have any trouble in finding a store that carries these frosted foods, I'll be glad to send you a complete list by return mail.

FR. COUGHLIN TALKS TO WOMEN

An Exclusive Evening American Series on Love, Marriage, the Home

Love Born in Gin Can't Survive

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

Boston American Staff Correspondent.

Copyright, 1932, by the Boston Evening American. All Rights Reserved.

Royal Oak, Mich., March 29—Women who marry behind the counter of a night club under the influence of "blind pig gin" can't expect a lasting marriage.

If marriage begins as a "hail fellow" proposition, it ends with a simple gesture of dismissal by the tiring partner.

Men, more than women, are to blame for the slow dissolution of marriage.

These are just a few of the epigrammatic views on marriage held by that outstanding priest of the air, Father Charles E. Coughlin, the outspoken pastor of the parish of the Shrine of the Little Flower.

"Marriage is a 50-50 proposition and is essentially a contract," he continued. "But today it has become a contract that has not stood up."

The easy out in divorce for two wandering souls is slowly ruining marriage, Fr. Coughlin maintained, as he appealed to the nation's womanhood through the Boston Evening American to consider seriously and sensibly the great institution of wedlock, founded for their protection but disregarded in a cosmos that is being sacrificed to mammon.

Woman Gives All

Therefore She Should Look Before Leap

He was sad as he meditated on the subject. He was sorrowful that women have forgotten their primary purpose, shut off their vision to days of grey hair and wrinkles.

"There is no such condition as physical incompatibility," Fr. Coughlin spoke on, his priestly punctuation and enunciation reverberating in the Crucifixion Tower of the anticipated octagonal radio church through which some day he will proclaim to even more millions than today hear him, his holy message.

"It is woman's business to find out before marriage her suitability to her selected mate. And I don't mean that she must live with him as his wife before the consummation of marriage.

"Woman must ask herself two questions before she forfeits the greatest thing that God beside His love has given her—purity.

"Let not woman be swept away on a great plane of hope and trust. Let her discover first man's disposition; secondly, his temperament. Let her discover before she errs from which there is no returning.

"Which leads me to speak on courtship. There isn't enough of it and what there is of it is wrong. Homes. There is a lack of homes. Courtship belongs in the home. But it isn't carried on there. It is sown and flowered behind the counter of a night club, on the dance floor, over the tea cups.

About Birth Control

Marriage Too Sacred to Be Made a Joke

"Man proves his social suavity and the woman is carried off into heights of ecstacy that do not take root in firm soil. Life's chief interest is not in unrestrained gaiety. For woman it should be serious motherhood.

"When she marries she gives up more than man gives up. She gives all. She should demand all.

"Marriage is more than the union of two bodies. It is the union of two minds and two hearts that must be one in affection. Politics is a science that deals with material things. But wifehood is a science that deals with souls."

Father Coughlin crossed his legs. He tilted back his chair. He looked off into space.

And once again he took up the trend of his thoughts.

"There exists in the country today a misconception of the natural laws. Girls and boys marry. Catholics though they are, with thoughts of birth control. There can be no two ways about religion, and there can be no two ways about marriage. It must be one or the other. It must be accepted or rejected.

"Not so long ago a young girl came to me; a young girl of my parish. She told me she was going to marry a young man who made $30 a week. I asked her if he made $30 every week. She casually said that he didn't, adding that that didn't matter.

"She was a girl who never wore the same pair of shoes twice, at least, I never saw her with the same pair. Her father spent many dollars on her clothes. She dressed well and stylishly.

Don't Be a Hypocrite

Girl's Ideas All Wrong as She'll Learn

"I asked her if the boy who was to be her husband could give her all the things to which she was accustomed and which her father had given her. She said he couldn't, but that they'd get along.

"And further I questioned her. 'You are going to have babies,' I said. 'Oh, no, Father, we can't have babies until we can afford them.' 'And you consider yourself a good Catholic?' 'You will remain a good Catholic.' 'And she said she would.

"'Oh, no,' I answered. 'You can't be a hypocrite. Be anything else, but don't be a hypocrite. She said her fiance told her he loved her, would love her forever, that his love for her would never cease. And I said to her: 'Go on, dear girl, come back to me in a few years and I'll have your baby adopted.'"

The lack of vision with which women marry today is appalling, Father Coughlin suggested.

He said woman enters the contract hastily, no thought but for the moment, for about five years at the most.

Women, too often, are willing to let things slide and trust to luck in a contract that should be binding for life, he added.

Sacred Contract

Love Ends When One Is Unfair to Mate

"To help the marriage sacrament along, we have brought in Christ's special help called grace," he continued.

"To women contemplating marriage I say these two things: Know your husband before you marry him and know that he will ever be willing to obey the laws of God and then vow that you yourself will obey the laws of God."

The psychology that man rejects his wife with the excuse:

"She hasn't grown along with me intellectually. I can't introduce her to my friends."

That is all wrong, he says.

"The contract on which marriage is founded, a contract of love and respect and admiration of sweet and lovely influence can never be changed if man and woman keep solemn their vows of matrimony," Father Coughlin continued.

"In marriage one takes the other for better or for worse. The trials of marriage should make more binding the contract and should serve to unionize the hearts and minds.

"The beginning of marriage is in the boy and girl courtship. He says I will love you forever. On the day of marriage he is asked if it is to be a three-months' vacation. He says no. He is asked if it is to be a two-year companionship. Again he denies the assertion. He is asked when will the love stop and quickly he says that it will never stop.

"Love intends to be perpetual and when love is lost it begins when one is unfair to the other."

Father Coughlin paused again. He knows what's wrong with the world, with its men, with its women. He recognizes the second-rate acceptance with which women are fighting a losing battle.

And he predicts in the near future a complete round-about-face in woman's psychology.

"The Romans went through its period of Christ-renunciation and revolt. America is foundering about, too. And American women are slowly becoming conscious that life is no toy to be played with and that if women must preserve their freedom they must organize against divorce."

(Father Coughlin denounces divorce in tomorrow's interview.)

Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, of the Shrine of the Little Flower at Royal Oak, Michigan, is shown pointing out to Miss Ruth Mugglebee, of the Boston Evening American staff, passages in one of his books setting forth his views on economic and social problems as they concern the women of the country. His messages to women appear daily in this paper.

HOSPITAL IS TO SPEED DRIVE

In a final effort to complete their drive for funds by May 1, the officers of the Deaconess Hospital fund are sending 11,000 letters to persons throughout Boston, New England and the eastern part of the United States, asking for early returns on pledges.

The letters contain a calendar for April and list the achievements of the hospital. The hospital is a world leader in curing diabetes and other serious ailments, and gave 5000 persons service less than cost last year, it is pointed out.

ECONOMY AND STORM TIE UP MANCHESTER

By ALAN FRAZER

Manchester, N. H., March 29—Super-economy!

That's what I found here—super-economy and slush.

Super-economy, foisted on a city that is bravely bucking economic conditions and doing very well.

Super-economy, invented by the state Finance Commission, after mayor and aldermen had already written economy in capitals on the city's banner.

Super-economy—it has slashed the wages of public employes, practically all of them more poorly paid than those of other municipalities.

It is undermining the morale of teachers, police, firemen and the rest.

It has wrecked departmental organization.

It threatens the community's commercial welfare.

And, coupled with the winter's worst storm, it has submerged Manchester in snow and slush.

WORKERS APPEAL

While city employes are rising to fight the cuts—they are going to the State House and will go to the Supreme court—citizens learned what super-economy means.

Super-economy and slush! And no "home rule!"

I have never seen the streets of any city worse clogged with snow. The super-economists thought the sun would come out and melt it. Instead there came a second storm—swift-driving, icy snow. Sleet followed long hours of snow and rain.

Because of the drastic budget slash by the Finance Commission, a slash that nobody could veto, a slash made when the appropriations already had been trimmed to the bone, only the main business streets were ploughed. And those not until early this morning.

SLUSH EVERYWHERE

Manchester has more than 250 miles of streets. It covers a large area. One ward alone is larger than the whole area of Lawrence.

Deep slush and snow lie everywhere, in the highways and byways. Cross-walks downtown are deep in slush. Entering the business section from the railroad station means wading through a sea of it, or slipping and skidding in a careening taxi. Residential sections will have to dig themselves out.

Daniel F. Cronin, superintendent of the highway department, denied that workers refused to take out plows until assured they would be paid. He said they were contented.

$9 PER WEEK PAY

But are they? At 46 cents an hour, and on a five-day week, they are receiving about $18 weekly when they work, which is every second or third week; so the average is $9 or even $6 a week.

Let's concentrate today on the highway department. Later we can take up the school and other departments.

This department last year had $290,868.70 to spend. This year it asked $315,000. The mayor and aldermen allowed it $283,000, a reduction of $16,868.70 from last year's expenditure.

The finance commission, not elected by the people as are mayor and aldermen, and subject to no vote, cut the appropriation $58,000 more.

"We have got to think of that $58,000 in attacking this snow," said Supt. Cronin. "We've got to remember we'll have snow next winter, too."

CUT OUT REPAIRS

Highway Commissioner Philip C. Lockwood said:

"It means we can't repair or lay out a single street. It means we can collect refuse only once a week. We have laid off a lot of men already. We are already staggering employment. We are paying laborers less than any other city in New England."

One city yard was closed only last week and 20 regulars were laid off. Six regular engineers of a staff of nine have been laid off. Even with these discharges, with the salary and wage cuts, and with a program of "no repairs," the department will have all it can do to keep within its narrow limits.

(Read more about Manchester's super-economy in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.)

AIMEE STAGES RUM DEBATE

Los Angeles, March 29 (AP)—With all the fanfare that go to make Hollywood first night showings internationally known, Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, the evangelist, and Walter Hutton, the actor, debated the prohibition question last night.

"Is prohibition a success?" was the question.

The audience was the judge. The decision remains to be given.

Approximately 5000 ballots were passed around. They are to be mailed to Angelus Temple, scene of the debate. The ballots bore a space in which the sender could apply for a free photograph of "Sister Aimee," as the Evangelist is known.

Both Mrs. Hutton and Huston agreed prohibition was a national issue, and they likewise agreed that it was a moral issue, although on the latter point their views were different.

Rochester Theatrical Man Killed, 4 Hurt

Rochester, N. Y., March 29 (AP)—David J. Nolan, manager of Loew's Rochester theater, was killed and four other men, three of whom were widely known in theatrical circles, were injured today in an automobile crash on the Buffalo-Rochester highway.

The injured: Frank Smith, treasurer of the Eastman Concerts; Bob Murphy, Binghamton; Edwin Hitchcock, New York, a representative of the United Artists Pictures, Inc.; William Freer, Rochester, taxi driver.

Tardieu to Visit British Premier

Paris, March 29 (INS)—Premier Andre Tardieu today accepted an invitation to visit London toward the end of this week to discuss the proposed Danubian Union with Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald.

The invitation was extended by Lord Tyrell, British ambassador to Paris. Tardieu said he would leave for London "as soon as the budget is voted."

700,000 MARK ANNIVERSARY OF K. C.

More than 700,000 members of the Knights of Columbus celebrate the 50th anniversary of the order's founding today.

In thousands of councils through United States and Canada observances were held to mark the growth of the organization from an idea of a New Haven, Ct., priest.

He was the late Rev. Michael J. McGivney, whose brother is now the supreme chaplain of the order.

COLORFUL OBSERVANCE

New England councils plan a variety of observances tonight, one of the largest centering in Charlestown where the first council in Massachusetts, Bunker Hill, today boasts one of the largest memberships in the order.

The Bunker Hill clubhouse is to be thrown open to the public for a reception of the nationwide radio broadcast planned by the heads of the order.

John E. Swift of Milford, supreme director and past state deputy, will officiate at a special observance in Worcester when Alhambra council observes the 38th anniversary of its founding.

Roslindale municipal building will be the scene of another colorful ceremony, the conferring of honorary degrees on all members of John J. Williams council who are more than 65 years of age and members of the order 25 years.

RITES IN DORCHESTER

Another reception of the radio broadcast is scheduled for the Columbus Club in Dorchester under the auspices of James E. Hayes, Mt. Bowdoin, Mt. Vernon, Fr. John B. DeValles and Dorchester councils.

Many other honorary degrees and the minor degrees for new members are planned in other councils.

Joseph M. Kirby, Massachusetts state deputy, is in general charge of the celebration here. In a special message he said:

"Anniversaries are useful as milestones of progress. The future can best be scanned by intelligent survey of the past.

INSPIRING RECORD

In the light of her progress, Columbianism may not relegate the first half century to the limbo of forgetfulness but must cherish its inspiring record as part of an unbroken chain of effort and service that bids fair to exist in undiminished vigor and success while time shall endure.'

The last two of the original incorporators of the order died during 1931. They were William M. Geary and Cornelius T. Driscoll, both of New Haven.

The others were Fr. McGivney, Rev. Patrick Lawlor, Matthew C. O'Connor, James T. Mullen, John T. Kerrigan, Daniel Colwell, Thomas M. Carroll, Bartholomew Healey and Michael Curran.

Man Killed in Row Over Other's Wife

Philadelphia, March 29 (AP)—Pistol bullets which police say Robert Pugh, 39, fired in an argument concerning his wife today, killed Harry Lotz, 45, formerly of Reading, Pa.

Police arrested Pugh and said he confessed shooting Lotz, whose attitude toward his wife he resented. Mrs. Pugh, also arrested, admitted knowing Lotz for more than 10 years.

Police Force Jailed for Bootlegging; Prisoners Flee

Ironton, O., March 29 (AP)—The Proctorville police force is in jail for bootlegging.

The force—Marshal Orville Carson and Deputy Marshals Melvin Ness and Ben Dunsee—were jailed at Portsmouth in default of $10,000 each after pleading not guilty.

The marshal and his men are charged with selling five gallons of liquor and conspiring to violate the liquor laws. To top off Proctorville's plight, four prisoners held in the town jail on liquor charges escaped when their jailers were arrested.

TRIAL SET FOR 3 IN R. I. HOLDUP

Providence, March 29 (AP)—Three men accused of being the daylight robbers, who held up a messenger for A. M. Tourtellot, on February 26, and robbed him of $6275 in cash and checks, today were held without bail for trial April 11. They pleaded not guilty to a secret indictment, charging them with robbery before Judge O'Connell in superior court.

The three men are Jeremiah J. Sullivan, 24, of this city; Lawrence H. Clark, 32, former Massachusetts state trooper of Attleboro, and Albdie Beausoleil, 29, formerly of Woonsocket.

GIBBONS TO TELL OF WAR

Honolulu, March 29 (UB)—Floyd Gibbons, war correspondent of Universal Service, will broadcast the first eye-witness story of the Shanghai battle to the United States Tuesday from Station KGU, Honolulu. The broadcast will go by short wave to San Francisco, from where it will be carried over a coast to coast network of the National Broadcasting Company.

Gibbons' subject is "Hunting Headlines Under Fire in Shanghai." In his talk, which was arranged by Hearst Radio Service, he will give a complete picture of the Sino-Japanese situation as he left it. He will be heard in the United States at 4:45 p. m., Eastern Standard Time, via the WJZ-Blue Network. Efforts of Hearst Radio Service to present Gibbons' broadcast from Shanghai failed because of atmospheric conditions.

The Man Who Coughed While Popping the Question ..... NO. 5 By Bateman

Luckies would have saved him!

BATEMAN. 1932

Here's the big difference in cigarettes

O. K. AMERICA
TUNE IN ON LUCKY STRIKE—for modern moments with Beneath's finest dance orchestra and Walter Winchell, whose gossip of today becomes the news of tomorrow, every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evening over N. B. C. networks.

If merely using rich, ripe tobacco leaves were all that mattered, nearly all cigarettes might be pretty much alike. But with LUCKIES—the Cream of many Crops is only the beginning.

To bring you LUCKY'S appetizing flavor and throat protection—every fragrant shred of LUCKY STRIKE tobaccos receives the benefits of an extra step... the celebrated "TOASTING" Process which includes the use of modern Ultra Violet Rays. By purifying every leaf, this exclusive process forces out certain cough-producing irritants. That leaves room for the extra goodness of pure tobacco, that mellow-mildness that you find in LUCKIES.

That means more for your money... more in delicious quality—and more in precious throat protection.

"It's toasted"

Your Throat Protection—against irritation—against cough

And Moisture-Proof Cellophane Keeps that "Toasted" Flavor Ever Fresh

WHICH REMINDS US THAT WE COMMENCED THE evening in the tropics and wound up in a blinding snowstorm . . . one hilarious night.

JOAN LINDSLEY

Things we remember . . . Meeting Texas Guinan at the Cocoanut Grove and recalling with much amusement our great interest in seeing her and her lack of interest in meeting US.

A parade of beautiful girls . . . lovely figures we mean . . . Trying to warm the crowd with firecrackers and chill them with ostrich feather fans . . .

A red-haired jazz singer in a black chiffon gown . . . you know the act . . . a thrilly, frilly baby in a silly-billy song.

Tex doing her act successfully . . . Give 'em a great BIG hand, boys . . . the best thing she does, we think.

Tex and a Greek gigolo . . . hers . . . getting off a lot of gags like machine-gun fire . . . and only a few missed.

Chinese chicken on the menu . . . for which we shall go back and back for more . . . and MORE.

A deluge of rain . . . and snow . . . and sleet when we swung through the swinging doors to go over to the Plymouth for the opening of Rebekah's new show, "Hay Fever" . . . and more laughs.

Ruining a pair of brand new sandals as we walked from the parking space around the South Station . . . and it took 20 minutes to find it . . . back to the theater.

Two Most Strikingly Beautiful Girls

WATCHING THE CROWD POUR IN WITH THE RAIN . . . Beatrice de Menocal and Jean Lindsley with two handsome Jacks . . . the vivacious dark-haired Beatrice in a crimson velvet Jaquette over a black gown . . . Titian-haired Joan in white frock with black velvet jaquette . . . two of the most strikingly beautiful girls in B. F. A. . . . and the peppiest.

Histrionic Felice Leeds in a sheer black chiffon gown with a handsome escort. We will spare you the superlatives but we are THAT WAY about Felice.

Frenches Attend

APPEARING LOVELIER than ever . . . which is saying much . . . Mrs. Malcolm Bradley French and her charming husband . . . constant first-nighters, Mrs. French could not tear herself away without a word about her PET . . . the Charlotte Cushman Club . . . a tea on the 12th at 1 Marlborough st. and a long roster of celebrities to make the last get-together of the season GALA.

Mrs. French

WITH HER HUSBAND, MR. WALTER J. BADGER, JR., Mrs. Badger puffed a wee cigarette in the lobby while she greeted her host of friends. She is Rebekah Hobbs' own cousin, so we are told, and is always on hand to wish her talented relative well. Let us add that Rebekah did a fine piece of work to fill the house to overflowing on its first night.

CONSTANCE COLLIER WAS greeted with enthusiastic applause . . . we almost said applesauce . . . and was too amusing as a temperamental mother.

Youthful Bride

WE LIKE STORIES AND plays about family life, especially the quarrels . . . We like to see how we can improve our own battling vocabulary. With an E. N. O. in the family, we feel he has the edge on us in such little matters.

THE YOUTHFUL BRIDE and young mother, Mrs. Francis Appleton Harding from Dedham, in black lace and looking very much as she did when she was a deb two years ago as Caroline Reed.

Bancrofts Present

MRS. HUGH BANCROFT AND Mr. Bancroft, first night devotees, which reminds us that we motored down to Cohasset on Saturday and saw their daughter's new house, recently completed, overlooking the bay. Mr. and Mrs. William Cox, who will move in soon, are still in the south.

THE HOUSE WHICH IS large and commanding is of red brick, Colonial in type, and when finished . . . the grounds and landscape . . . will be one of the finest places on the South Shore. Many merry week-end parties will be held down there this summer.

A Heart-Ache

WE HAD A BIT OF A heart-ache when we went out to the auction sale at Dunrovin, the late Maj.-Gen. Edwards' place in Westwood, on Saturday morning. A delightful country house on Colonial lines, long and rambling, we felt the dear, departed soldier very near to us as we went through the empty rooms, everything in disorder and alien hands fingering precious mementos.

Refreshing Drive

THE DRIVE THROUGH THE woods and lanes of Dedham was very refreshing and, as we strolled around the garden of Dunrovin, we know he must have felt refreshed to get back to his native homeland after many years of wandering about the world.

Fascinating Sport

AUCTION SALES ARE FASCINATING sport . . . if you don't know their owners. Many times we have spent an entire day attending an auction way down in Maine to purchase a Duncan Phyfe or Sepplewhite something or other, only to find when we got it home it was early North Grafton, Lloyd or late Grand Rapids . . . but it was fun.

An Innovation

AND SPEAKING OF FUN . . . Have you heard that there will be general dancing after the Hasty Pudding show on Wednesday night . . . an innovation never before tried . . . and that the show is ON commencing the 30th, 31st and April 1, goes on the road and returns April 14, 15 and 16. Tell you more tomorrow!

Buttons Will Determine Your Smartness

By DOROTHY ROE

New York, March 29 (US)—Button, button, who has the button?

The new spring clothes have it, for one thing.

Buttons are all over the place again—and not just ornamental buttons scattered hither and yon for effect. But real, workmanlike buttons that hold things together.

We'll be busy buttoning and unbuttoning things this season.

For by the number of your buttons shall your smartness be gauged this spring.

The newest blouses button down the front, shirt-style.

Suits and coats boast double rows of buttons, in wood and cork, in brass and nickel, in bone and ivory.

New neckwear, bibs and cpaulets are buttoned on to dresses.

Jumpers, so popular just now, button on the shoulders.

Many of the new detachable capecollars fasten on one shoulder with a huge button, while the white crepe or pique bib that is all the rage as trimming for dark tailored street dresses often has a row of buttonholes across the front, buttoning snugly on to the frock.

Gloves are using buttons and button-holes — especially those hand-stitched one-button models in white pigskin and doe.

Even shoes are returning to the button-age. The one and two-strap walking shoes is substituting buttons for buckles in a great many instances, and there is a monk-type semi-oxford which fastens at the side with two buttons. Very smart.

Bags have buttoned fastenings.

And even the new clip-pins are being disguised as buttons.

BOOKS—and a Number of Things

By CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

When he goes whistling down the street—
His eyes are young and young his feet—
He does not know the words that stand
Like rows of flame within his hand.
He casually rings the bell
Of 42, where all is well,
And waits there in the vestibule
Where it is hushed and clean and cool;
A careless lad who does not guess
The words he brings bring emptiness,
Bring sorrow and engulfing tears,
And change the smooth march of the years.
The door is opened. Nevermore
Will one pass through that friendly door.
White fingers tear the envelope,
White fingers through the message grope.
There is a cry, a sound of feet . . .
A boy goes whistling down the street.

One salutary thing has happened to us in these distracting days. Americans are talking politics, as never before. They are vitally concerned, for the first time in years, in government. They are watching their politicians. They are learning to use the ballot intelligently. They read every word in the newspapers which reveals what is going on in Washington. They are even keeping lists of Senators and Congressmen who are voting contrary to the wishes of their constituents. It is a wholesome, healthy sign.

One can remember the time when our country, far less congested than now, contained men and women who fought bitterly over an election. Party feeling was strong, and there were torchlight processions, with the issues proclaimed in ringing phrases on banners, which were held aloft by indignant citizens. Men left their pinochle games in front of cigar stores to have fist fights over their candidates. Arguments took place on every street corner. But there followed a time of great indifference, and men would be heard to say, "What's the use?" and then go off and play golf instead of voting at the nearest booth.

But the wheel has swung around again; and nowadays people are calling one another up by telephone, urging them to write to their congressmen over this and that issue. "Please telegraph about the Bingham bill, and ask your senator to vote for it." a woman screamed at me over the line the other morning. I did. And I received a letter immediately from my senator, saying that he would do so.

The American people are slow to take action; but when they are aroused, the politicians had better look out. We have our eyes on them now, and unless they are blind themselves, as well as deaf and dumb, they must know what the anger of the people portends.

Only a little while ago it was necessary to say that most people were stolidly living from day to day, feeling it hopeless, in view of increasing taxes, to make contentful plans for the future. A lack of patriotism was rampant in the land, they said, in which the country as much as ever; but the inconsistencies in the minds of those who govern us were getting on our nerves, and we grew weary of facelasting congressmen.

But if citizens keep silent, the men who represent them in Washington will go on doing as they please, with little regard for the men and women back home. They will continue to upbraid dramatic critics, when they should be about the serious business of making America a better place to live in.

One wishes that we Americans could learn to discuss politics around our dinner tables, instead of immediately rushing off to bridge tables; to talk of important issues without losing our tempers.

In England once I listened to a labor leader, a Roman Catholic bishop, a member of the House of Lords and a militant suffragist talk of every question of the hour, sanely and wisely, and although opinions differed, there was no acrimony in the discussion, only a calm understanding of one another's thoughts and feelings and reactions. Each listened attentively to what the others had to say, and once the member of the House of Lords said to the militant suffragist, "Yes, I think you're right. I hadn't thought of it in just that way."

Until we get to that sort of tolerance we shall remain merely ignorant, quarrelsome groups, unable to arrive at any sensible solution of our manifold problems.

But it is discouraging to pay income taxes, knowing that a considerable percentage of what we turn over to the government will be spent in paying the salaries of federal officers seeking to enforce a law which experience has shown us can never be enforced. It is intolerable that decent citizens may be shot in their cars, simply because they are suspected of transporting liquor.

It is intolerable that the speakeasy flourishes, while down the street the respectable hotel proprietor can scarcely pay his running expenses, and that the holders of his lease may be held accountable if even so much as one drop of wine is sold on his premises.

It is discouraging that the Wickersham Report has been tossed to oblivion, and is no longer mentioned; that our taxes helped to pay for that report, and we are not given the benefit of its intelligent findings.

It fills us with antagonism that no bootlegger, grown rich on his nefarious profits, turns in an honest income tax report, and that you and I, who work hard for our livelihood, pay the government the sum that must go to make up the deficit.

We need leadership as never before in the history of our country. How much longer are we going without it? These are questions that the American people are thinking of now, deeply and seriously.

DON'T DESTROY

the ELASTICITY that makes stockings wear*

DO YOU KNOW what causes those ruinous stocking runs?

New stockings are elastic. They give under strain, stretch and then spring back again. When this precious elasticity is destroyed, the silk threads, instead of giving, break under strain. It is then that runs start!

That is why Lux is especially made to preserve the elasticity that makes even sheer stockings WEAR.

*The Lux Way to make stockings wear

Wash this 2-minute way:
1. One teaspoon of Lux for each pair. 2. Add lukewarm water to Lux, squeeze suds through stockings, rinse well.

Don't rub with cake soap. It destroys the elasticity of the silk. With Lux there's no rubbing.

Avoid ordinary soaps—cakes, powders, chips. These often contain harmful alkali which weakens threads, fades color. Lux has no harmful alkali. Anything safe in water is safe in Lux.

Don't use too-warm water—it fades. Lux melts in lukewarm water.

BURRAGE, LINDY CONTACT, MUM ON YACHT TALE

Norfolk, Va., March 29 (AP)—Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage referred all inquiries to Col. Charles H Consolvo today when shown a Baltimore dispatch quoting Mrs. Consolvo as saying her husband had been asked to take Admiral Burrage and his associate negotiating for the return of the kidnaped Lindbergh baby out to sea on his yacht.

Colonel Consolvo, who heads a corporation with a chain of hotels could not be located. He is a personal friend of the three Norfolk intermediaries.

Asked about a rumor that a million dollars ransom was demanded for the baby the admiral said he wouldn't dignify the rumor by even a denial. He said no specific amount of ransom has been discussed.

Wants Teachers Liable for Perjury

School Committeeman Edward T. Brady presented an order today to the Somerville school committee, which was referred to the committee on rules, that application blanks for all positions in the school system carry a provision to the following effect:

"That all statements made herein are made under the pains and penalties of perjury; also any misstatements of a material fact shall be justification for automatic dismissal."

DISMAL SWAMPLAND MAY BE HIDING PLACE OF KIDNAPERS

LINDBERGH KIDNAP SHOWDOWN COMING, SAYS GO-BETWEEN

it was not very far away from here.

"I am quite aware," he continued, "that Col. Schwarzkopf of the New Jersey state police has discounted our story somewhat. In my estimation, however, that was to be expected, for the colonel has been receiving thousands of crank letters and false clues.

"Despite the reaction of Col. Schwarzkopf, I still remain as optimistic as ever, and I am now returning to Norfolk to take the matter up with my associates."

The dean was asked whether he intended to return to the Lindbergh home within a few days. He replied momentarily, as though carefully selecting his words, then said:

SOMETHING DEFINITE

"I hope so. I almost expect to, and I will say this: If I go back to the Lindbergh home within a few days or a day or so, it will mean that I have something very definite to offer.

"I am sorry that I am not able to give more details, but you will appreciate the position I am in. When my companions and I got into this, it was our sole intention to help Col. Lindbergh and to be of assistance in finding the baby. We had no thought of any publicity, and we very much regret that this matter has come to light."

Curtis, in his shipbuilding shop today was quite able and looked less tired than he had for days. He had apparently caught up with his sleep which he lost in a mysterious mission over the weekend.

SCOUTS SWAMP RUMORS

The shipbuilder is six feet two inches in height and weighs over 200 pounds.

He scouted rumors the baby was in the Dismal Swamp section of Virginia, north of Norfolk.

"Those rumors are absurd," he said.

"Have you seen anything such as the baby's clothes or anything tangible?" he was asked.

"That is a question I cannot answer," replied Curtis.

"Did Dean Dobson Peacock [illegible] like a lock of hair or some of the baby's clothes up to Col. Lindbergh when he visited him yesterday?"

"If he did take anything like that I don't know anything about it," answered Curtis.

"Was any picture of the baby supposedly taken by the kid nappers taken to Col. Lindbergh by Dean Dobson-Peacock?"

EVADES QUESTIONS

"That I cannot answer," said Curtis.

In response to various other questions, the shipbuilder gave the [illegible] reply.

He admitted that in case the negotiations fail through he would be put in an unfavorable light but he indicated quite plainly that he had enough confidence in Lindbergh to carry on.

"The negotiations may [illegible] through, the negotiations may fail," he said at one juncture of the interview.

He refused to give a definite answer to the question as to whether he was convinced of the authenticity of the persons with whom he was dealing.

AMONG THEMSELVES

Curtis said he had not called local police or any other police officials into the case.

He declared that up to the moment the negotiations were being conducted strictly between himself and two conferees and the kidnapers.

Asked if there was any assistance to the kidnapers from the navy to co-operate with the Rev. Dobson-Peacock the latter found to Hopewell in a navy plane, Curtis replied:

"The Navy is always helpful, especially to those whom they know."

Curtis is well known to the Navy officials here.

Curtis refused to give any details to indicate where the baby or the kidnapers are. He specifically declined to say whether they were on land or at sea. He refused to say whether he was dealing with one person two or more.

SLOWED BY PUBLICITY

He expressed the opinion that the widespread public hubbub was receiving was not helping the negotiations toward a speedy end.

It was pointed out to him that Dean Dobson-Peacock had been quoted as saying the baby would be returned within 48 to 96 hours.

Curtis said he believed the statement was misquoted and that he had never said such a thing.

The lack of activity, coupled with that of his two colleagues on the part of Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, retired, was due to the fact that his wife has been ill, Curtis said.

Shortest Kidnaping Story: 'No News'

London, March 29 (INS)—The shortest story that ever appeared in the Evening News was carried on its front page today in "covering" the Lindbergh kidnaping.

Under the heading, "Lindbergh Baby," the story simply said: "No news."

Theories of Readers

What is your theory in the Lindbergh baby kidnaping case?

The majority opinion, as expressed by readers of the Boston Evening American were to determine the actual whereabouts of Al Capone in responsible or it is an "inside job" — or both.

"Hitler has the baby."

"Japanese stole it in revenge."

"The ladder was just a blind."

Nearly all possible theories have been discussed by readers and not a few correspondents seem quite positive of their deductions. Following are more excerpts from the Lindbergh Case Editor's mail bag.

HELD AT SEA

"The baby will not be found on land. The persons who took the baby are on land. There were four in the land plot. I believe they have been questioned, but not pressed hard enough. I think the baby was passed out the window by a woman. Gangsters took the baby on a boat to free Al Capone."—R. D. Clark, Providence, R. I.

TO OUST LINDBERGHS

"I think the kidnaper was a carpenter familiar with the interior of the house and that he belonged to a group that wanted to drive the Lindberghs from that locality. I do not think he climbed in or out on the ladder, but that the ladder was there against the window for a quick exit if the baby cried."— Mrs. Emma J. True, Greenville, Me.

TO BE UNSOLVED

"It's going to be just another unsolved crime. Two men who know their lives are not worth much if they are captured did it. I don't think Capone knows anything about it. It's just a good excuse for Al to get out."—Harrison Bowley, 203 Marlboro st., Dedham.

SAILOR'S LADDER

"The case is now showing an angle I have suspected from the beginning. It was done by someone who had experience as a sailor. Look at the distance between the rungs of the ladder. No landsman would have placed them so far apart. I think Red Johnson may have inadvertently given valuable information to the plotters." — D. N. O'C., Everett.

REVENGE MOTIVE

"Revenge was the motive and the crime was committed by a foreigner. I believe the baby is now outside the United States. The ladder and chisel indicate the work of one man."—RCJ, Spring st., Fall River.

RELEASE CAPONE

"If Capone were to be released I think the baby would be returned."—Mrs. N. Demers, Derry, N. H.

ANNE'S BROADCAST

"Has it ever occurred to anyone that some Japanese might have resented the wonderful broadcast Mrs. Lindbergh made over the radio the week before the kidnaping?"—Former Bootlegger's Wife.

What Is Your Theory?

What is your theory of the Lindbergh kidnaping puzzle which has aroused the entire world, and which has baffled the collected police talent of the entire nation? Your theory is as good as anyone's at this time. Send your idea to the Lindbergh Case Editor, the Boston Evening American.

Police Communique Fails to Mention Norfolk Envoys

By QUENTIN REYNOLDS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Trenton, N. J., March 29 (INS)—The seemingly endless sifting of reports, tips and clues in the police search for the Lindbergh baby continued today with no progress reported.

Col. H Norman Schwarzkopf in charge of the hunt for the baby, issued a report which in part, mentioned that nothing of importance had developed in the official hunt during the past 12 hours.

He again called attention to Harl Fleisher, "Purple Gang" killer wanted for the kidnaping, saying he was with the aid of investigators from all over the country.

"A report received this morning that a man was seen carrying a baby under suspicious circumstances near Trenton was received," Col. Schwartzkopf reported. "This was immediately investigated but did not disclose any information of importance in this case.

"An anonymous phone call [illegible] with his pal, Harry Feiss [illegible] Regarding the reported death of Wagner, the police bulletin said:

NEVER VERIFIED

"These reports have never been authentically verified although rumors to that effect persist. These rumors have been reported ever since the search for Wagner was started, but in the absence of authentic verification further information is being sought concerning him.

"Fleischer has been reported in various sections of the country, but no authentic information has been obtained as yet to his where abouts.

"A letter was received alleging that a child resembling the Lindbergh child was held in a foundling sanitarium. This was immediately investigated and all children closely examined.

"No child was found resembling the Lindbergh baby.

HOPE SOMEWHAT DIMMED

Some of the [illegible] of the baby voiced by friends of Dean H. Dobson Peacock as to Lindbergh was dimmed by [illegible] today.

While the dean told newspaper men after his conference Lindbergh appeared impressed with reports of the report he made on behalf of himself and two associates in Norfolk, reputedly in contact with the abductor of the infant, [illegible] of the State police issued this bulletin.

"Col. Lindbergh does not believe the information obtained at Norfolk to be of specific significance in this case."

But the dean after leaving the Lindbergh estate said he [illegible] informed about the return of the child. He and Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage and John Hays Hammond, Jr., the builder, appeared certain the negotiations would lead to the restoration of the infant to his parents.

The dean, after his talk with Lindbergh, at which another man not Col. Breckinridge, the famous aviator's attorney, was reported to have been present, sped off in the direction of Philadelphia.

TO SEE LINDY AGAIN

He refused to discuss in detail his conversation with Lindbergh.

"I may be back in a few days," he said in answer to questions whether he would see Lindbergh again. "Possibly tomorrow, but I think it will be in a few days."

"Are Admiral Burrage and Mr. Curtis coming up also?" he was asked.

"Maybe," he replied.

He also said Lindbergh [illegible] out but fair. He [illegible] Mrs. Lindbergh, he said.

DENIES ALL RUMORS

There were rumors that the [illegible] was bringing with him a piece of the missing child's clothing, reportedly obtained by Curtis, and supposed to [illegible] the safety of the kidnaped baby, on his previous trip last week-end from Norfolk.

The dean at [illegible] and also reported [illegible] Lindbergh [illegible] that a message in the [illegible] he had seen the missing 22-month-old baby.

HOUSE CHEERS GARNER'S TAX APPEAL

peal was punctuated by members [illegible] applause [illegible] of Democrats in an effort to [illegible] from disaster, a [illegible] House [illegible]

[illegible] Garner appealed to the patriotism [illegible] Democrats [illegible] to pass the measure [illegible]

"I believe," he said dramatically, "that if Congress declines to pass a tax bill there won't be a bank in the United States in 30 days that can meet its obligations to its depositors.

"I believe we would have a financial panic unequaled since the organization of this republic."

WILL FIGHT FOR BILL

It was Garner's first speech since he assumed the speakership, and he caused notice that from now on he intends to abandon the [illegible] role he has been playing in the tax fight and instead is going to fight on the floor and in the hall for a balanced budget.

Outlining the financial situation of the nation Garner [illegible] moved to this climax.

"Mr. chairman, I want to do something unusual, not according to the rules," he said.

"I want to ask every man in this House who will agree to vote taxes to balance the budget to stand up."

Fewer than 20 Democrats remained in their seats.

CITES FALL OF EXCHANGE

Warning of the [illegible] of a failure to [illegible] the credit of the government, Garner said:

"Yesterday when the people throughout the world realized that Congress had indicated it did not intend to balance the budget what was the reaction?

"We found that foreigners were selling the dollar. We found our exchange going down more than it has in 12 months, and we found this followed by a falling of United States securities."

"I but meant that people who had placed $1,000,000,000 in this country believing that this flag protected property as well as life, were afraid.

"When it was heard around the world that there was some doubt whether the budget would be balanced, they began to draw gold.

"I don't care what kind of taxes you levy. The committee has brought in a program. I don't agree with all of it. But I hope that you will approve the bill.

APPEALS TO MANHOOD

"I want you to be good enough, I want you to have the manhood to say to your constituents, 'We put a tax, to put something in its place,'"

Garner said that when the wasteful [illegible] of [illegible] the only way to balance the budget is to levy a sales tax, he informed members he had always opposed a sales tax.

"But if I found it impossible to balance the budget and restore confidence of the people of the world in this government, as I believed, I would levy any taxes," he said.

Rep. [illegible] of New York [illegible] to [illegible] Democratic [illegible] Republicans to [illegible] that we balanced the budget.

"I want to say to the Speaker, to the Democratic majority and to the people of the country that I am in entire sympathy with everything the Speaker has said," Snell exclaimed.

GIRL SHIELDED BY HOLDUP SUSPECT

Trapped in the room of his "sweetheart" by police, a chivalrous alleged holdup man today refused to name the girl from capture as he faced arraignment on a charge of robbing a chain store.

He is Joseph E. Rooney, 29, of Concord sq., South End, said by police to have been connected with a number of Greater Boston hold-ups.

Rooney was arrested in a Lincoln rooming house in the South End when he kept an appointment with the elder of two sisters, Rita Boyce, 24, and Pauline, 18.

"Leave the girls out of it," he said at headquarters, after being fingerprinted and photographed today. "They are O. K. I wasn't 'lured' at all. I had a date with Rita and I kept it, that's all. I blame myself."

NEVER ROUGH WITH HER

Rooney was held on a technical charge of being a suspicious person pending investigation by squads of a number of holdups.

The Boyce sisters, located at the home of friends in Milton, declared they had not known Rooney was a holdup man.

"He was always very polite and courteous," said Rita. "He was not rough and he never had a gun in his possession when he was with me.

"I didn't lure him to the room. He had a date with me, between 6:30 and 7 o'clock, and the police found out about it. Mr. Rooney arrived at 7:10. When he came in he said jokingly 'Stick 'em up.' He did not have a revolver and was just being funny.

"Special Officer Curran, who was waiting in the room with Officers O'Shea and Durkin, stepped forward and seized his hands. Then they searched him and took him away."

The police, searching for Rooney in connection with holdups, learned he was keeping company with the girl and watched the Union Park house. In talking with the girls they learned he planned to call last night, and laid their trap. The sisters were not held.

ADMITS $168 HOLDUP

Rooney was questioned about the holdup of Albert Russell, Roxbury rent collector, in Moreland st., Roxbury, Jan. 24. Police said he admitted the holdup, but claimed to have obtained only $168 instead of the $300 reported lost by Russell.

According to police Rooney said he became afraid after the Russell holdup and went to Providence to hide for a month. They quoted him as saying he threw his gun into Fort Point channel.

He was also quizzed on a holdup Feb. 19 in which the robber escaped from a store in Mt. Pleasant st., Roxbury in a car rented in a name by the same name. Rooney reported to have in accomplice.

The Boyce sisters, whose home said to be in Dorchester, are they met Rooney four or five months ago and that he and Rita had been friendly. They denied being with him the night of Feb. 19 when he is alleged to have spent money on two girls.

COURT SNARLED OVER CHINESE

The Chinese situation which has been doing very well for a time became very acute in federal court today when Asst. U. S. Atty. Hiram Bagnulo got before Judge Lowell in name of four Chinese and then at was discovered that there was a "ringer" among the defendants.

It was not the fact that there was the ringer, Yee Chow, that the bewildered immigration officers could put up a standing legal action for an offense of which he already had been acquitted.

It was merely that the four defendant, Chin Jen, had been held to raise money in East Cambridge Jail and Yee Chow had been taken to court by mistake.

Records of immigration officials, while Atty. Joseph F. Donnell was standing on the witness stand, showed that Chin Jen Dee Sam Yee Chow and Chin Ty

"Wait a minute," the federal prosecutor interposed. "There are so many Chins and Lings and Yees in my mind that I'm trying to find out where I'm at. Who is who?"

Commissioner Jenney, who is trained family that he has was a bit perplexed.

Atty. O'Connell then had the four men rise so that they could be identified.

Deputy Commissioner James Fitz Gerald, who presided for the grand jury for passenger, and Chin Ty for being present where narcotics were found.

If nothing else goes wrong Chin Jen will be given a hearing later.

GAMBLING BOAT DENOUNCED AS A 'HELL ON EARTH'

Washington, March 29 (AP)—Conditions which Representative Free (R., Cal.) described as "hell on earth" were attributed today before a House committee to floating gambling palaces anchored outside the three-mile limit.

His statement was made before the House Merchant Marine Committee considering a bill to prevent "free taxi service" from the shore to these gambling palaces.

"People go out to the boats and lose their money," Free said. "When they get ashore they rob filling stations or anything or commit suicide because of their despondency. It's hell on earth in that locality."

A. J. Lyter, chief of the Commerce Department's bureau of navigation, supported the legislation passed recently by the Senate. He testified there are nine such boat anchored off San Francisco, two off San Pedro and one each on the Delaware and New Jersey coast.

Representative Free (R., Cal.) forms read an invitation he had received to have a "free dinner" for him and party aboard one of the gambling ships.

Then Rossel Lowe, assistant Attorney General of the Admiralty division, testified.

The Attorney-General, realizing the states can not handle the situation, favors the passage of this bill.

WHY TEACH POLITICS IF THE TRUTH IS TO BE GLOSSED OVER?

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

"Dedicated to the task of educating youth in self government, with a view to developing capable leaders for the future, a state-wide movement was launched at the Boston City Club recently, as part of a nation-wide campaign undertaken by the United States Society.

PROF. ROGERS

"Education of our children—arousing in them an interest in and an everyday knowledge of the workings of our government—should be a very effective way of combatting the evils of indifference. A great national need of today is for more people to know, to understand, and to believe in representative government."

These are extracts from the program of an organization, the ideals of which are quoted. The program runs extraordinarily true to form. It consists of laudable ideals, desirable ends and aims and goals, trust in formulas, faith in words, and trust in human perfectibility.

But Who Will Instill Them?

I cannot at this moment think of a program of ideas more necessary than the one under consideration. The only question is: Is the program to bear any relation to actuality or is it to be purely idealistic, which is to say, incompetent?

Is the program to be under the control of the public school system and therefore to be based entirely on a beautiful ideal without any regard for the drab actuality? Is the system to be in charge of the eighty per cent or more of our public school teachers who are unmarried women, whose knowledge of the actualities of politics is almost nil?

Or are our school children to be taught actualities. I note that every college president in the neighborhood is a member of the governing body. This means, of course, that the list of honorary patrons and patronesses, so to speak, of the movement is made up almost exclusively of those whose work has to do with young people at an age that has less interest in politics than in anything else. Most of them have been completely spoiled by a method of teaching politics that takes into consideration none of the actualities of our political life.

Does this organization intend, for instance, to rub in the proposition of Mr. Kent of the Baltimore Sun and the American Mercury, that an election depends, in the last analysis, on the amount of money available for spending in the various local precincts? Does it intend to teach that the reason why Woodrow Wilson delivered himself bound into the hands of the experienced European politicians was because Mrs. Wilson determined to go abroad after it had been settled that the President would stay at home? Does it intend to make clear that the business organization of the United States government is the loosest, the least competent, the most extravagant and shameless in the world?

Why Not Teach the Truth?

If not, one wonders what use there is in any organization, however high minded, trying to train our boys and girls in any pragmatic knowledge of the facts of our government.

Any attempt to teach the American youth the essentials of the right and wrong of our governmental system must, inevitably, depend on facts, the significance of which is rabidly denied wherever our civics is taught. The imbecility, for instance, of the half-populated and poverty-stricken states of the west and south rating as high in the Senate as the wealthy, crowded states of the north and east. The imbecility of a system wherein most of the expenses of the backward states of the Union are paid by the wealthy and progressive states. The increase and multiplication of departments and bureaus, the aim of which primarily is to furnish good jobs to hordes of people who are unable to earn a living under the competitive system and who would like to organize their world on the basis of radical social notions.

Or will this program we are hearing of be merely another attempt to inculcate in the democracy the notion that whatever is is right, that since we are essentially prosperous (in spite of the recent momentary unpleasantness) our theory or practice of government must be essentially perfect; and that any criticism of the American apparatus of government is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial. In other words, if you don't like this country, why don't you go back where you came from?

Or Make Politics Fashionable

As a people we are becoming (it seems to me) the victims of the notion that all that is needed to bring about fundamental reforms is to gobble, gabble and git! . . . i. e., to give an elaborate luncheon, season it with elaborate speeches, and go blithely about one's own business, leaving the fate of the enterprise to a paid secretary, who probably suggested the whole thing in the first place.

I suspect that the only way to improve politics is to make it fashionable. There is, of course, a section of the population among which it is fashionable already, among the young men whose only possibility of a career lives in a night law school, a civil service job, a minor elective office,—and success! Otherwise they would have to drive a truck or solicit advertising. Meanwhile, the young men whose background, education, social position and ability would make them most valuable in the work of government, would do almost anything rather than look to politics as a career.

Their grandfathers and great-grandfathers took it for granted that money, a family tradition, and a professional training made public service obligatory on the promising young man. Noblesse oblige! To them there is no obligation, only the dubious prospect of an uncertain career. Therefore, they leave politics to those to whom it offers a living far better than could be earned in any other activity.

The answer is, therefore, make good marriages, membership in desirable clubs, entree into reputable firms, and the like, dependent on political activity, and you shall see the local situation become what it was a hundred years ago when, in the words of Henry Adams, Boston insisted on being represented by the best!

DISABLED TRAWLER CALLS FOR HELP

POET SAYS WIFE FLOORED HIM BY JIU-JITSU

Dorchester Rhymster-Inventor Causes Many Laughs in Suit for Separation

Samuel Gilbert, of Esmond st., Dorchester, revealed in probate court today that he was a poet, inventor, and instructor of jiu jitsu, when he sued his wife for the right to live apart from her.

When Judge Prest asked him for a sample of the "volumes of affectionate sonnets, poetry and prose" he claimed he wrote for his wife, Helen, Gilbert read a telegram he sent her on Valentine's Day:

"My darling wife, true and fine,
I am happy that you are my valentine"

When the anniversary of their wedding came last fall Gilbert wrote:

"FLATTERED," HE THOUGHT

"Yesterday we were wed, or so it would seem,
How swiftly time has sped, or was it a dream?
The measure of pleasure is time's speedy flight.
Thus the year we treasure was only one night."

"Is that poetry?" asked Judge Prest.

"You flatter me," responded Gilbert.

After order was restored in the courtroom Gilbert was asked if he still loved his wife. His emphatic answer in the negative sent the spectators off in another gale of laughter.

Gilbert stated he taught his wife jiu-jitsu so that she could defend herself because of her frail statur.

USED JIU-JITSU

"She used it on me on six minor occasions and half a dozen major occasions," he said.

Gilbert further testified that his wife was extravagant in making purchases on charge accounts, clothing herself and her family, and putting a bad dent in his $50 salary and royalties from a patent screw driver he invented.

Mrs. Gilbert stated that she tipped the scales at 170 pounds, and to the spectators this appeared to be about 80 pounds lighter than her husband.

She denied having used Japanese methods of wrestling on her husband and also denied making purchases beyond their means.

Judge Prest took the case under advisement.

DARTMOUTH, 14 ON BOARD IN DANGER

Cutter Steaming to Aid Vessel in Distress 250 Miles East of Boston Light

Storm-lashed New England north of Greater Boston settled down today to dig itself out of ice and snow while the Coast Guard cutter Acushnet steamed to the assistance of the trawler Dartmouth of Boston.

The Dartmouth, her engine disabled 250 miles east of Boston, radioed for assistance today, declaring that seas were pouring her and that she could not keep headed into the mountainous waves.

Soon after a radio message was flashed from the Acushnet Coast Guard headquarters in Boston stating that she had picked up the distress call and was proceeding to the Dartmouth's aid.

In September, 1930, the Dartmouth figured in the heroic rescue of 22 men from her sister trawler the Yale when the latter sank 73 miles east southeast of Cape Cod while being towed by the Dartmouth.

While the greater part of New England was digging out of drifts Boston, having escaped the heavy snowfall, was headed today for another breath of spring.

The film of ice and snow quickly disappeared in Greater Boston as the sun touched them, and the temperature rose to 37 at 9 a. m. from the midnight low of 28. It will be even warmer tomorrow with no immediate storms in sight.

COURT REJECTS HULTMAN PLEA

A fight for the right to reinstate seven suspended policemen without consent of the Civil Service commission was lost today by Police Commissioner Hultman in a decision by Judge Brown of the Court.

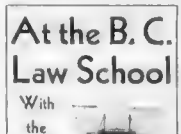
Hultman's fight was against the civil service ruling that no officer suspended beyond the period of a month may be reinstated without consent of the commission.

In his petition for a writ to compel commissioner Speight to issue commissioner Tuomey both jobs, to order the city auditor and treasurer not to pay respondent and to the seven officers.

The seven policemen are [illegible] F. McCarthy, Frank H. Monahan, Thomas E. Griffin, Henry E. Hart, William E. Payne, William C. Pinbrook and Patrick M. Yarnell.

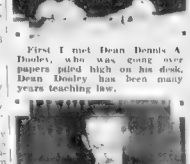
They were suspended on various individual charges.

At the B. C. Law School With the Candid Camera



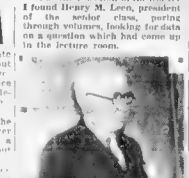
His assignment yesterday took me over to the Boston College Law School in the Lawyers Building, 11 Beacon st. It's very handy to the Suffolk County Courthouse, where the students are sometimes listening to cases, the kind they may come up against in their future days as lawyers.

First I met Dean Dennis A. Dooley, who was going over papers piled high on his desk. Dean Dooley has been many years teaching law.



Sauntering along the corridor to the library, I met Prof. William J. O'Keefe instructor in contracts and legal bibliography. Prof. O'Keefe teaches in the night and day schools.

In another section of the library I found Henry M. Brown, president of the senior class, poring through volumes, looking for data on a question which had come up in the lecture room.



A busy man is Prof. Francis J. Carney, who teaches constitutional law. I found Prof. Carney as he spoke to his class.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

At 11:30 on New Year's Eve Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt arrives at the exclusive Masfair Club in response to a mysterious summons from District Attorney Merle Dougherty. The latter informs Colt he believes Lola Carewe, known as "The Night Club Lady" widow of Gaylord Gifford the cotton millionaire is the "highest up responsible for numerous jewel robberies perpetrated recently which baffle the police. Lola is slain mysteriously in her apartment. Caroline Hyde found dead. Colt orders the door in the room analyzed. Parts of a scorpion are found. Dr. Bullwinkle dies of the bite of a scorpion. He leaves a startling statement incriminating Lola. Rowland, the lawyer, is under suspicion.

NOW READ ON—

"BUT LET'S get it right before we put the steel mittens on the murderer," said Colt.

"That's the only satisfactory way to handle a job like this anyway. Rowland can't get away. We have him under the closest observation. No, my idea is to keep him that way while we establish the vital points which would be needed to convict him."

"Prove that he had possession of the scorpion."

"Certainly—that is one of the most vital phases on which we would have to be 100 per cent correct. Then we shall have to show that even though he had the bathrobe in his hands, he had also the opportunity to secrete the scorpion there. To me that is one of the weakest links in the chain. Consider for yourself, Dougherty—Vincent Rowland had that bathrobe in his hands before he and Lola left the house to go to the Mayfair Right? Do you believe, then, that he put the scorpion in the bathrobe at that early hour? If so, why did no one notice?"

"Christine was in the room at the time," Dougherty was quick to say. Mrs. Carewe. None of them seems to remember that Rowland did anything suspicious with his sleeve. I should fancy it would be a deliberate and delicate—and certainly dangerous—operation. But even granting that he was able to manage all that, what more are we asked to believe. That the scorpion remained quietly in the sleeve all the time Lola was out of the house? It seems to me a man of Rowland's intelligence would hesitate before taking such a risk of failure as that."

"By jumping juniper," exclaimed Dougherty, "I must say, Thatcher, that I didn't figure that out. Is Vincent Rowland cleared in your opinion, then?"

HAD PERFECT MOTIVE

"By no means. If he was mixed up in any crooked schemes, and Guy Everett and Baldwin were threatening a complete exposure he had a perfect motive for wanting to get rid of those two girls. He had the intelligence to plan it. It is even possible that he connived with Lola, and made her his dupe in getting the scorpion—she thought they were to murder someone else, never dreaming that they were intended for her. That is a possibility. Whoever is guilty made Lola purchase the scorpion—I feel sure of that. But we have no complete case yet against Rowland, or anybody else. Until we find the motive operandi of the murders, I think we should let the case seem as inexplicable a puzzle as possible."

Dougherty poured himself his fourth cup of coffee, and accepted another serving of stuffed baked potatoes.

"Agreed Thatcher. Have you found any indications pointing to anyone else?"

"Plenty. There is a distinct possibility that the murder was committed by Mrs. Carewe."

"Thatcher, good God, man—what are you saying? You don't really mean that seriously?"

"I do, for the present." As he spoke, I was lighting a cigarette.

IN DEADLY EARNEST

"I am in deadly earnest about it. There has not been since the moment we walked through the penthouse door anything that seemed spontaneously affectionate or genuine in the relationship of Lola and her mother. All the outer signs were there but not the inner spirit. Mrs. Carewe has grieved only in so far as I am concerned, unconvincingly. Her hysterics and her excitement have not moved me. Only once have I seen genuine emotion in that old lady. That was when I refused—I her excitement

'U. S. A BOOB, KILLS ITS OWN GOLDEN GOOSE,' SAYS BANCROFT

WASTE BILLIONS BAR RETURN OF PROSPERITY

Kiwanis Club Speaker Flays Folly in Sales Tax Defeat, Dry Law Hypocrisy

We have become "a nation of boobs," James R. Bancroft, president of the American Institute of Finance, told members of the Boston Kiwanis Club at a luncheon today in the Boston City Club.

Appealing to his listeners to "let's stop being boobs," he declared:

"We fuss and fiddle about collecting war debts. We listen and heed all the childish propaganda from clergymen, college professors, politicians, street corner economists and demagogues while we lose in national prosperity countless times over the actual dollars and cents involved in the war debts.

"Talk about Nero fiddling while Rome burned! It looks to me as if there are 120,000,000 imitators in this country with Congress waving the baton.

SALES TAX DEFEAT FOLLY

"We scream our heads off demanding that the war debts be paid, and we erect higher and higher tariff walls to prevent their being paid.

"We storm about a sales tax to balance our national budget, which transcends every other consideration, and trample it down in Congress with the hoodlum tactics of the cheering section, although it would mean but $22.50 a year to the man who spends $1000.

"We jump with glee at the prospect of placing surtaxes of 50 to 60 per cent on incomes which will not exist. In our effort to help the poor, we do our utmost to force the rich man's money out of business, on which the poor man depends, into tax-exempt securities.

PROHIBITION HYPOCRISY.

"We spend $500,000,000 annually in a hypocritical attempt to enforce prohibition, while we refuse to yield one-half that amount involved in the collection of the war debts. We decry forces of banditry and gangdom and then we perpetuate their power through slavish devotion to an apparently impractical principle.

"We hurl money to the winds in profligate governmental expenditure and then we worry about the credit of our government.

"We take our money by the hundreds of millions out of the banks and then we damn the bankers because they will not lend. We bury our money in hole or vault and then we wonder why business isn't good. We refuse to buy other men's goods which we need and for which we can pay, and then we wonder why he cannot buy ours.

"We buy securities of any and every company that does business in the glorious United States, regardless of prices, at the top of a boom, and we sell them all out in the throes of hard times. We find no price too high to pay for stocks in 1929 and no price too low to sell them short in 1932.

WE BLOCK PROSPERITY

"We enthusiastically purchase securities at the height of a boom for 25 to 50 times the biggest earnings they have ever shown, and we want no part of the same securities when they can be bought in many instances for less than the governmental bonds and gold dollars in their treasuries.

WILD BACK BAY CHASE ENDS IN 2 ARRESTS

JOHN CONWAY JOSEPH P. MAHONEY ARTHUR KIHLGREN

MORRIS A. ARMAND HERBERT E. SMITH

Patrolman John Conway, who charges he saw Herbert E. Smith, of Cambridge, ripping a pay telephone coin box from the wall in the hallway of 99 Norway st., Back Bay, early today, chased Smith upstairs to the roof then down again to the street where Smith was captured by Patrolmen Joseph P. Mahoney and Arthur Kihlgren. Police questioned Smith for an hour and said he confessed robbing five of the 200 telephone coin boxes reported looted in the Back Bay in recent months, and he implicated Morris A. Armand of Wyeth st., Malden, who was arrested later in his bed at home. (Staff photo.)

TOOTHPICKS AID IN 2 ARRESTS

Common toothpicks, and the detective ability of a policeman, resulted in the arrest today of two [illegible] believed to have been responsible for more than 200 telephone coin box lootings in Back Bay.

The officer is Patrolman John Conway of the Back Bay station, who set out to earn a reward so he might meet pressing bills and inspired by gratitude to Capt. Perley [illegible] Salisbury [illegible]

Herbert E. Smith, 22, of Mt. Auburn st., Cambridge, was arrested after a chase over apartment house roofings and later Morris A. Armand, 19, of Wyeth st., Malden, was taken at his home.

Conway, whose beat is [illegible] frequently reported [illegible] was [illegible] to earn a $500 reward offered by the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. for [illegible] of coin box thieves.

The police officer, whose route includes Norway st. nights, was also desirous of capturing the thief or thieves to show his appreciation of Capt. Skillings' kindnesses to him during his troubles.

He made nightly tours of apartment house lobbies, placing toothpicks in each telephone booth door. On retracing his steps, if the toothpicks were gone Conway made inquiries as to who used the phone.

Last night in the building at 99 Norway st., he found toothpick and coin box missing, and discovered Smith running upstairs, he said. The chase and two arrests followed.

Mother and Wife End Fight to Be Veteran's Guardian

With the hearing scarcely under way in recess petitions for guardianship over John Biggs, World War veteran and former Lynn fireman, his mother and wife compromised today in Salem probate court and allowed as attorney to be made guardian.

Biggs, who was separated from his wife some time ago after he staged a raid with police and found her with a 19-year-old Lynn youth, is now a patient at the veterans' Hospital in Hathorne with a total disability rating.

The wife, Mrs. Florence Biggs, 30, admitted on the witness stand that while they were living in Stoneham at Lynn her husband [illegible] home unexpectedly by one hour three years ago with [illegible] in his car, who he was supposed to be doing a 24-hour shift as a fireman.

She admitted he and the police found her with [illegible] Lynn. A short time afterward [illegible] and his wife separated and she went to live in Washington st., Lynn.

There she admitted her husband staged another raid with police and found her again with the youth. She claimed, however, there was "nothing wrong" and that she and the lad had just returned from a [illegible] party.

When the mother took the stand, she said under questioning that she did not want "any trouble" and admitted that there was "no special reason why his wife could not be guardian."

Atty. Thomas Quinn, regional counsel for the eVierans' Bureau, then suggested that either Atty. Joseph Clancy, wife's present guardian mother, or Atty. William Landregan, who represented the wife, be appointed guardian. All principals were willing, and Judge Alden P. White gave Atty. Clancy the assignment.

2 Plead Guilty in Bogus Money Plot

A counterfeit plot uncovered by federal agents in Orange last September had its climax in United States Court here today when Howard Sloss and Louis E. Livingood, both of Orange, were sentenced to a year each in jail.

Livingood's sentence was suspended. Both men changed not guilty pleas to admit possessing and concealing spurious Federal Reserve $10 notes.

FINES FOLLOW GAMBLING RAID

The workings of a slot machine were demonstrated by Police Lieut. Sharry in Somerville District Court today and a fine of $150 on Christopher J. Cullen of Rossmore rd., resulted.

Cullen was arrested during a raid on the Tammany Club in Bow st., a few yards from police headquarters, and charged with maintaining a gaming nuisance. A quantity of beer and liquor was seized, together with the slot machines.

Cullen appealed the fine for gaming. The liquor case against him was continued. Six patrons of the place were fined $10 each for being present where gaming implements were found.

RESCUE 16 IN CAMBRIDGE

A triple probe has been launched into the two-alarm fire that early today swept through the store and tenement block at 938-946 Cambridge st., East Cambridge, when 16 persons, including a two-weeks-old infant, were rescued and several score more driven to the street into a raging blizzard.

State fire authorities joined with Cambridge fire and police officials in investigating the blaze which caused damage estimated at more than $10,000. Chief James M. Casey, of the Cambridge fire department, after a preliminary investigation of the fire, stated that he believed the blaze originated in the furniture store at 944 Cambridge st. He enlisted the aid of the state fire marshals of fire in conducting a further probe.

A second alarm called out from Somerville, and a water curtain was thrown about a nearby garage for fear of explosions in gasoline storage tanks, as the flames spread towards them.

It had gained great headway before the smell of smoke aroused Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kalakewicz, occupants of the second floor.

Mrs. Kalakewicz gathered up the two-year-old infant and her husband took John, 2, in his arms, meanwhile grouping Stella, 13, Edward, 11, Joseph, 8, and Mary, 7, for the dash to safety. Firemen found the family hemmed in by smoke and led them to the street.

In the rear of the block Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Bobroski were aroused with Bernard, Jr. 10, William, 18, Anna, 15, Mary 10, Louis, 6, and Charles, 2. With Louis and Charles in their father's arms, they were led to safety by firemen.

DILL HERE, SEES DOOM OF DRY LAW NEAR

Far-Western Senator Speaks Over WNAC; Goes to Maine Democratic Convention

The rising generation, "who are almost uniformly wet," will bring about the elimination of prohibition, U. S. Senator Clarence C. Dill, of Washington said here today.

Senator Dill arrived in Boston [illegible] to deliver a radio address while on his way to Maine. Senator Dill said prohibition was the only issue he knew of which was before the people as well as before Congress.

The Democratic Senator from the state of Washington discussed the revenue bill with which Congress is struggling, and devoted his radio address from WNAC to the subject of cutting expenditures.

Alternating with Senator Arthur Brisbane's radio addresses on Tuesdays on "Current Issues in Congress," under the auspices of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

A "Roosevelt shouter," as he calls himself, Senator Dill is scheduled to speak at the Democratic convention at Portland tomorrow, after which he will return to Washington.

Asked if he thought beer would be brought back he said:

"It's up to the folks to elect enough wet congressmen. I'm not a free character, because my state has voted dry in three referendums. We haven't had any since 1916, but I'll turn wet if my state does.

"The change will come through the rising generation, who are almost uniformly wet, as far as I can see."

Senator Dill said he favored reduction of congressional expenditures as a means of balancing the budget in place of the sales tax.

WESTINGHOUSE TO BOOM SALES

Plans for the largest newspaper and merchandising campaign the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Co. ever has staged were revealed at a dealer meeting and banquet sponsored by the Weimore Savage Electric Supply Co. and the Wetmore Scott Co. of Boston, at Hotel Kenmore.

John W. Scott, general manager of Wetmore Scott Co. metropolitan distributors, presented the campaign for promoting Westinghouse refrigerators.

The Westinghouse Co. sent a group of men from Mansfield, O., headed by C. Bruce Wetmore, who introduced the Westinghouse refrigerator in New England and expressed the belief that plans presented would produce a substantial increase in sales over any previous period.

W. E. Downing and H. S. Gould, vice-presidents of Wetmore-Scott Co., described the various product features and sales helps.

HARVARD STRAWS SHOW BAKER WIND

Harvard students' preference for President was being learned today in a straw vote election conducted by the Crimson. Early balloting put President Hoover ahead of Calvin Coolidge, and Newton D. Baker in the lead of a Democratic field of nine.

AUTOISTS SAVED ON MOUNTAIN

A story of a night of suffering by a party of men and women, marooned in a stalled automobile in Pinkham Notch, N. H., in the worst snowstorm of the season, was received by short wave radio by Albert F. Sise of 697 Boylston st., Brookline, today.

The message which lacked names and details, was sent from the Appalachian Mountain Club camp in the Notch by Joseph B. Dodge, hotel caretaker.

He stated that the party had been rescued and taken to the camp where they were recovering from their experience, apparently not much the worse.

Sise, an amateur radio operator who [illegible] communicating with the camp for several months at stated hours, was told that 19 inches of snow fell yesterday in the Notch causing the [illegible] of 47 automobiles.

Baker and Hoover Lead in Harvard Straw Ballot

Herbert Hoover, on the Republican side was leading Calvin Coolidge today in a straw vote balloting by Harvard students under auspices of the Harvard Crimson to determine the students' preference for President of the United States.

On the Democratic side of the ballot Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War under Woodrow Wilson, was showing surprising strength, and a plurality of balloters who were Republicans in 1928, but who shifted this year, were going to Baker.

Four polling places have been set up, one each in Seaver and Harvard halls for the academic students, and one each in Lowell and Pierce halls for students of the law school.

On the Republican side of the ballot appear only two names—Calvin Coolidge and Herbert Hoover, but on the Democratic side are nine names in the following order:

Franklin D. Roosevelt, Alfred E. Smith, John N. Garner, Albert C. Ritchie, Newton D. Baker, William H. Murray, Samuel Seabury, Robert J. Bulkley and James A. Reed.

Also appearing on the ballot is the following, to be answered by the voter:

"What were your sympathies in 1928?" Name party, Republican or Democratic.

"What state are you from?"

Balloting will continue through tomorrow and the results will be made known Thursday.

In the 1928 Harvard straw vote Hoover led with 1841 votes as against 1380 for Smith, the leading Democratic candidate.

PUBLICITY MEN HEAR EXPERT

The successful executive of the future will be well balanced and well rounded, but will think in terms of ultimate profit and ultimate good, H. A. Hopf, management engineer, of New York, predicted today at the luncheon of the Boston Advertising Club in the Hotel Statler.

"The business executive will have to develop a sense of proportion which includes an appreciation of human aspirations and a willingness to strive for their attainment," he said.

"He will not be a production executive, financial or sales executive. He will be detached from any special interest and open-minded toward all."

Harold Dennison, president of the Dennison Manufacturing Co., introduced the speaker. Col. Carroll J. Swan presided.

Marry-Go-Round

EVERY YEAR LEAP YEAR FOR MODERN GIRL

By HELEN ROWLAND

A "FAST WORKER" is merely a man with a quick emotional tempo, who has to use speed to get a send-off on his own getting-married schedule.

A man takes a woman for better or for worse, and then starts right in looking for the "worse".

A woman may not get so much excitement and joy out of her pleasures in life as a man does—but she gets a lot more thrills out of her "sufferings."

Every year a leap year is set aside for the benefit of the modern girl in connection with the calendar, but she doesn't need it without an offer of marriage every time she looks at herself.

A man is so easily fed up! Nothing tastes so good to him, upon his return from a fishing-trip, as a plain, honest slice of roast beef and potatoes. And nothing looks so good to him, upon his return from a lingering honeymoon trip, as his office-desk.

In selecting a husband, it would help a girl a great deal to choose between something ornamental and expensive which would add an effective touch to her drawing-room, and something plain but useful which has to be looked at most of the time.

There is no use trying "first aid" on a dying love; the most humane thing to do is to put it out of its misery, quickly, mercifully and permanently. But a woman can never resist rushing for the ammonia and a pulmotor.

When a man is in love he is apt to spend most of his time in a state of mental [illegible]

by the mention of the name of Basil."

"But that has nothing to do with this case," interjected Dougherty testily.

Perhaps not. At all events there I found a real reaction.

The police chief scratched a match.

"It happens every year—almost every month," he reminded the district attorney. "Patricide, matricide, parricide—blood relatives let blood in great quantities.

"I know—but among people of this class?"

"Consider the facts," returned Colt. "It happens among the good solid citizens of the United States I can quote you innumerable examples. What of that amiable mother of Havre de Grace, down in Maryland, who poisoned her children to collect the insurance? Do you think she was a monster? There are a hundred like her. And how many that are never caught and punished, God only knows. And by the way, the death note was left at the desk just about the time the old lady came home from the palace.

"But what motive could Mrs. Crewe have?" rumbled Dougherty unhappily.

"Hatred is the most common when mothers kill their children, or children their mothers and fathers. Very seldom is insurance the cause. Insanity may be a word to gloss it all over. Or Mrs. Crewe may have some practical motive which we have not as yet discovered."

I am sure you will find that Lola was not killed by her mother, Dougherty stated with all the conviction of deep-rooted prejudice "Anybody else?"

"The rest of the servants, naturally. They, too, had opportunity. Only someone with access to the premises could have done the crimes. Junior does not seem to me to have brains enough. As for Chung—"

He looks to me to have dark ways and peculiar tricks," paraphrased Dougherty. "He's an Oriental and—

At this moment the door opened and Detective Sergeant Ryan entered. He had the air of one who brings news, and had been waiting for this moment.

"First," explained Thatcher Colt, "Flynn has had another talk with Blando Villafranca and the laboratory supply agencies. The South American at once confirmed all the details regarding the scorpions mentioned in Baldwin's letter. Also he told the circumstances of the last meeting he had with Doctor Baldwin—the one at West End Avenue and Seventy-Second Street about ten this morning. It seems that Baldwin called Villafranca and insisted on meeting him in the manner described by Dennis this morning in his report. This did not puzzle Villafranca. Baldwin had never called at his shop to carry the scorpions off with him. Of course. It was understood between them that the scorpions were for the use of scientific research. Nevertheless, Baldwin had always been very secretive. They must meet away from the shop. Apparently this morning Baldwin had no idea that he was being followed. Although when we returned his needle and apparatus to him, he should have been suspicious. Furthermore Villafranca willingly gave our man another box, a duplicate of the several lost in this affair. All search of the rest-house yielded no further signs of such boxes. But Flynn has traced one just the same. The ashes in the fireplace when sifted showed the exact same size of nails as in the sample—and the same number, also some infinitesimal fragments of burned cotton. This ends the search for the boxes the second set which Baldwin undoubtedly gave to Lola. The killer burned them in the fireplace."

"Thatcher" groaned Dougherty, "I am at last beginning to believe we are up against a problem that cannot be solved!"

M-G-M Contract Is Given Diana Wynyard, Now Appearing at Colonial

Los Angeles, March 29—If Greta Garbo does pack up the carpet bag and trot off to Sweden in June to live, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is not going to be left in the lurch. In other words, they believe in preparedness. One evidence of this is the signing of Diana Wynyard, talented English actress.

One of the M-G-M executives saw her in "The Devil Passes," Basil Rathbone's current Boston stage play, and was so impressed he signed her on a contract. She comes west to Hollywood and Irving Thalberg is now looking for a play that will give her the best possible chance.

Miss Wynyard's introduction to the stage was in "Petticoat Influence." She played the part in London Helen Hayes created in America.

Johnny Makes Good

Johnny Weissmuller is one in a hundred, and I'll tell you why. The average actor who is engaged because he is a champion in some line or other is usually a flop. Few of them get beyond the one-picture stage. Johnny made "Tarzan," and I am told that it is a picture. Everyone who sees it says it is a yarn that holds the interest from beginning to end. Anyway, he has been given a new contract by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and a search is being made to find him another story on the order of "Tarzan."

THE VOICE OF BROADWAY

By LOUIS SOBOL

Down Memory Lane!

(With Margaret Livingston, whom you may call Mrs. Paul Whiteman without being sued.)

On Thanksgiving Day in 1901 the Livingstons, of 44 Sixth Ave. East in Salt Lake City were preparing the basinet (only they didn't call it that in those days). "We'll call him Charles," said the prospective father. "Charles Frederick," amended the mother-to-be. Late that night a baby girl was born. That my memory is on this world.

My first recollections were of continually disappearing from the ground. The dislike at first soon turned into a firm friendship as we found common tastes. And I was amazed at a man who would send me six dozen orchids at a time. He asked me to marry him but I told him I thought he was too big and asked him to reduce. He told me that he didn't know whether it was worth the trouble. But the next week he had started on his diet. When he had taken off 24 pounds we traveled the long road down to the altar.

House to explore the town and countryside. I don't think I ever quite got over that runaway habit. I ran away incessantly — even from the altar eight days before the marriage. But that story comes later.

I had a strange tendency to collect all the babies in the neighborhood and take care of them—all this when I was still almost a baby myself. My ambition in life was to run an orphan asylum. Then the Fremont Grammar School where the boys called me "Reds" until I kicked them in the shins. This followed by the Salt Lake City High School. My classmates included Betty Compson, the lovely actress; Wanda Lyon, who later became Al Jolson's leading lady, and Mary Thurman, the rage of the screen before her death.

But before I take the stages of my childhood let me confess that before I was five years old I possessed with a mania for setting things on fire. I burned down at least four sheds, barns, fences and such just for the fun of watching them come. But I was cured with a good application of the paddle.

I ran away from a course of business at blind George Gatcrell's to go to California. I was 17 then. I met Edna Purviance in Los Angeles. I thought that she was the most beautiful thing in the world with shining blonde hair, gorgeous figure and lovely shell-pink complexion. She was the epitome of all I longed to be. I'll always remember her buying perfume at 75 a bottle and how it shocked me into determining that I, too, would be a motion picture actress. She was 16 then and in love with Charlie Chaplin. The three of us would eat in Al Levy's Cafe, on spring street in Los Angeles, then the gathering place for the motion picture folk.

Nevertheless, I left, and I was in Salt Lake City and became engaged to Geo ge Crosby, a sheep and cattle man. Invitations were out I bought a wedding veil and all I lacked was a husband. I ran away a week before the marriage was to have been the 4th wedding. I'm told, of mine. I'm no record, I don't mind admitting. I'm not sure of his red hair. I left for Hollywood.

I got extra work at 33 a day until I landed a job at one of Mack Sennett's bathing girl. I thought I was doing awfully well as I received $25 a week. Phyllis Haver, now Mrs. Billy Seaman and Mae Prevost also were Sennett girls then. The blondeness and lazy sweetness of Phyllis I enjoyed and we are great friends still.

Crossword Ben Turpin was the comic on our lot then and would keep all the girls in giggles, even off the set. But the director asked the bathing girls to go in bathing and I wouldn't think of such improper conduct and straightway quit. Of course, it was November and a bit chilly also.

I finally went to work with Charlie Ray who was probably the busiest man of that period. The picture was "Busher," and I played my first vampire part. Since then I have never been in any other thing else. Louise Glaum was the great vampire then and Dorothy Dalton whose picture I next played in was the great star.

Around that time Edna Purviance took me to the Alexandria Hotel Indian Room where all the movie people went. A fat young fellow by the name of Paul Whiteman was a band playing there. He had not come from Santa Barbara and Frisco with a different kind of band. I didn't meet him, and didn't like him. If I could have looked into the future I would have been amazed to see myself happily married to the man that would be stuck on the stand so unobtrusive of my presence at a table but a few feet away.

I met Whiteman many years later at a party in New York. He said "hello" very coolly and casually, but later came over with a cocktail and said, "You know I like you." I tried to chill him with a frigid "Yes." But we soon found a common meeting

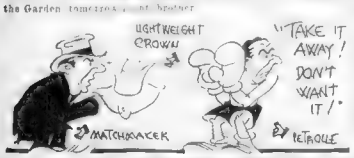
We Love Our Bruins, But—Oh You Cubs!

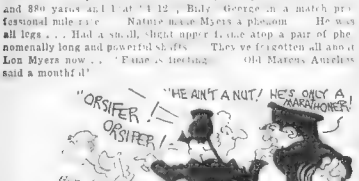
Boston loves its Bruins but—Oh you Cubs! . . . Going all will be there, tonight, to see Frank Boucher's puckish home in the Can-Am stakes . . . Tonight's the night Boucher puts his Canadiens out of N H L running . . . Before the season started, I expressed the hope championship rested between Rangers and Maroons and he personally "liked" the Maroons . . . No one knows his hockey as well as Bill . . . One reason why the Can. Am. Cubs are so hot is that youngsters all are looking for N H L berths . . . Lesnevich of the Cubs would be Boston's and some of the Bruins would be Cubs despite Mother Nature next year . . . The Bruins won the N H L championship but Boston is a tough town to play baseball in either sunny or rainy weather . . . Under . . . No wonder it's where they can't lure "em all, except for the Boston Garden . . . And where will we find so many genuine sport addicts? . . . Even N Y can't get away with three games a week as Boston did almost all winter long . . . See you at the Garden tomorrow . . . but not before



Jacob Finkelstein, Judas Bergman and Sabino Petrelle are figure prominently in this week's ring doings . . . Jackie Field, Jackie Kid Berg and Sammy Fuller they are known to most of you . . . Following that awful licking at the hands of Billy Petrel Bat Battalino now has been promised a lightweight title match with Tony Canzoneri . . . The ways of the matchmakers are stranger than Bret Hart's heathen Chinee . . . The excuse is that Petrolle does not want to make the lightweight limit as he would have to do in New York if he won the title . . . Take it away says Petrolle, of title. I don't want it . . . Battalino's relatives want him to give up taking licings before he becomes goofy . . . A fighter never gets over a licking such as Battalino took from Petrolle . . . Kid Berg, who licks our Sammy Fuller in Madison Square Garden next Friday night gave Petrolle a lacing a year ago . . . But Jackie is supposed to have gone back since then . . .

During the height of the winter mad wirreking we knew the westerners would take them turn at figure fracturing when the outdoor competitions opened . . . Ben Eastman started it with that remarkable 46.2 seconds quarter, last Saturday . . . That's the quarter mile of the century . . . But before we start slamming how much better the kids are than the old timers remember that Maxey Long did his 47 seconds flat on the old cinder track at Gutterberg, N. J., not on a rolled, pressed cinder path . . . As Long's old world's round a turn record shattered by Meredith was made on a fifth of a mile course with shorter, sharper turns than the sweeping circuit Ted fractured the figures on . . .

Sure the breed is getting better but there were just as remarkable athletes in the old days as there are now . . . Perhaps more . . . There never has been an athlete like Lon Myers who could run in near record time at all distances from 100 yards to the mile . . . Myers won national champ ships at 100 220 440 and 880 yards and I at "4 12", Billy George in a match professional mile race . . . Native never Myers a phenom . . . He was all legs . . . Had a small, slight upper f. me atop a pair of phenomenally long and powerful shafts . . . They've forgotten all about Lon Myers now . . . "Fame is fleeting" . . . Old Marcus Aurelius said a mouthful



Those fellows you saw racing along the suburban roads nothing but their undies on to speak of from the body out . . . Just training for the Boston Marathon . . . America's premier road classic is just three weeks from today . . . Sidney Franklin is the Jewish boy from Brooklyn whom the Barstow and Brookins of Spain's greatest bull fighters . . . Former New York authorities to permit bull fights . . . Chic Hilbert . . . Ernie Schaaf is said to want to fight Primo in New York . . . Paolino doesn't want to meet Schaaf . . . Primo Carnera . . . in Boston than New York . . . Master Bob . . . Jimmy Smith, who has become New York's . . . Jack Dempsey so Bird Jack . . . [illegible] . . . Wert through four rounds . . . A few days a couple of no. later in the Turkish bath . . . Wert start for the fight . . . was over . . .

Bill Kenney serve has not gone in the Golf . . . tournament in New York last night and Boston Johnny Mann . . . was of the three set . . . Eddie Farrell's suggestion that a . . . outstanding Olympic athletes be . . . from competing in . . . tryouts is a good one . . . Why . . . Hilliard has like Gene Venzke, Ben Eastman, and George Spitz . . . entered to be . . . enough a big testing trial . . . just plain . . . [illegible] . . . Joe Jacobs . . . promoters he has selected Tom Loughran . . . pace at White Sulphur Springs on Saratoga Lake as . . . training quarters . . . Jack Shatkey . . . Dempsey, Tunney Firpo . . . Tig Scanlon and other famous . . . [illegible] . . . the spring . . . Jimmy Buckley has a yet selected Sharkey's . . . [illegible] . . . Say will be somewhere near New York . . . Shatkey is self . . . United States . . . Tunney Graduate but was voted . . . town . . .

The robins are here . . . saw flocks of 'em up in the Blue Hill of New Hampshire last Sunday . . . Baseball teams soon will be following the red breasts north . . . Red Sox pull up tent pegs and start a slow northward swing next Thursday night . . . Archmaking the team with a Jersey . . . sales is a good idea of Bob Quinn's . . . That farewell Sunday game with the Cincinnati Reds Tuesday will be the Sox . . . ing league baptism of fire . . . The Braves were not nearly . . . ed . . . They were almost drowned by the Yankees . . .

Coach Eddie Powers

Hockey's best beloved manager—EDDIE POWERS. Most of you know him. All who know him, love him. He can get more out of his players than any two managers. Gets it because he knows when to lash and when to pat. Can be a stern disciplinarian. But as long as they are giving their best his boys know Eddie is with 'em until the fence breaks. Has held out for a square deal for his players when the holding out hurt. There's not a scrappier, "fightenee" bunch on the ice than the Cubs and they'll give everything they have to bring the Can.-Am. championship to Boston. They'll give their all when the Cubs-Eagles battlefronts are thrown out in the Boston Garden, tonight. The Cubs are playing for something besides the Can.-Am. championship. They are playing for Eddie Powers.

FORBES ON 'BRICKBATS'; IS HE WRONG?

By B. C. FORBES

It's life. Brickbats intersperse bouquets. This column draws a continuous succession of both.

Let's talk only about the brickbats. Those hurling them sincerely feel the writer deserves them.

The hopeful cheerful tone which often characterizes this column.

Calamity Chorus Loud Enough

I plead guilty.

My reasoning—it may be crassly wrong—is that quite enough attention has been devoted to the dark side of things, quite enough doleful comment published, quite enough headlines and space dedicated to depressing facts and figures. Enough people seem to delight in burrowing in ashcans and sewers. Enough gloom seems to be disseminated. Enough heed seems to be paid to prophets of disaster—prophets who were equally cocksure in 1929 that America's progress could never, never be arrested.

Perhaps mistakenly, I have felt that no useful purpose whatsoever would be served by my daily joining the calamity chorus. My objective has been to search out favorable or halfway favorable facts and point them out rather than indulge in daily weeping, since weeping helps not at all.

Depressing Events Not Ignored

Frank confession has been made from time to time that of actual, definite business improvement no convincing signs have been evident. Records of the appalling number of dividend reductions and omissions have been regularly compiled and printed here. A faithful record has been set down of the prevailing sentiment in the most influential circles. And, of course, the potential danger involved in the recent fanatical behavior in Congress has been frankly recognized.

There has been no intention whatsoever to either distort or ignore unpleasant facts.

Not at all along pure satisfactino has been taken in noting constructive rather than in harping eternally upon destructive facts and factors. So many people, including those in positions of notable eminence, surrendered long ago to discouragement and despair, so many concluded that the sun would never shine again that this writer deliberately chose to sound a note of faith, to look beyond temporary troubles, and to keep pounding that someday the storm will subside, some day the tide will turn, that some day prosperity will return.

Confidence in Future

Not one line has been set down here which the writer did not sincerely believe and believe in. There never has been the remotest intention to misstate facts, to misinterpret developments or to attempt to paint clouds as sunshine.

It would have been the easiest thing in the world, no trick at all, to find texts daily for woeful preachings and despairing deductions. It would have called for no scintilla of courage to go along with the pessimistic procession.

Optimism More Helpful

"Aren't you afraid of your reputation?" one bear asked me the other day

"My reputation? I never give a thought to that," I replied "I write as I am moved to write, regardless of consequences to me personally. Maybe I'm kidding myself in imagining that the course I have followed, if it has had any influence at all, has been more helpful than a constant outpouring of gloom would have been

Ready for the Brickbats

If this incites more brickbats, go ahead and shy them!

The foregoing must not be interpreted as a pledge that nothing but optimistic notes will ever be sounded here.

Unless the jaundiced, astigmatic, pin-headed politicians who have succumbed to lunacy at Washington are quickly stripped of power to cause further chaos, neither this writer nor any other writer is likely to find much of a cheerful nature to write about for some time to come.

Financial News, Stocks, Bonds and Comment

STATE ST. Hears:

That the attitude of the markets distinctly reflects a disposition on the part of the trading fraternity to wait on Washington. Until some signs of sanity regarding the balancing of the budget are seen, constructive market tactics will be noted for their complete absence. In the meantime it is likely that prices will travel in a narrow sidewise rut.

The Situation

While it is the mode to emphasize the poorer features of the current situation there are one or two constructive events in the offing which deserve more than passing notice. Because they promise to furnish trade stimulation which could easily broaden out and start a real revival they must not be underestimated. All require the production of a wide list of basic industries and all promise to increase employment.

First the motors, under the leadership of Ford, Chrysler and General Motors, are about to engage in the most concerted drive on business merits seen since 1929. There is no empty gesture, and should bring unmistakable results. Second in importance is the rumor that Pennsylvania will receive a loan from the Reconstruction Corporation enabling it to complete the projected electrification plan.

Boardroom Briefs

If Congress will at least refrain from headline politics the bullish effects of the above developments could bring an overnight change . . . It is interesting to note that the proposed Pennsylvania borrowing is a direct application of the prosperity theory on a somewhat modified scale . . . If feasible in one instance, allowing 50 cents times more effective if administered in billion dollar doses . . .

One broker terms the best news of recent weeks the lowering of reserve requirements on loans to banks . . . Right it has been held that the Old World has been short the grains . . . It would not take very long for the over-pushed North American wheat shares to disappear if foreign supplies became much lower . . . Also really April weather conditions are expected to work pleasures.

The Dollar

Although the action of Congress in refusing the inquiry, source of taxation from which funds should be specially balanced is of concern in impeding about a flow of capital from the dollar should be taken with a grain of salt. The countries recently stripped of former financial power because of their own shortcomings, are only too anxious to generate talk intended to scare funds which previously fled to the dollar for protection.

While such a movement will strengthen other currencies in the exchange market, it will also remove many trade advantages caused by previous falls from dollar parity. Thus the immediate result should be a repatriation of some of the funds now causing tariff barriers but restricted importation of American goods, as well as a return to exchange of workers assisting in export projects to understaff American in operative numbers. SORRY SALES TAX MET WITH ANTAGONISM

By FRANK H. MELOON

Elmer H. Bright & Co., members of the Boston Stock Exchange, declare:

"It is unfortunate that the sales tax has met with such antagonism in Congress, since, stressed in some form or other, it is perhaps as painless a way as any yet devised for collecting necessary revenue.

"Considerable time will probably be needed to devise some other way, as once equitable and efficient, to raise the money. Finding the process of finding other sources which may yield results we are not inclined to see some fluctuations in prices in response to endeavors to discount the final proposals on different securities."

"Armour & Company announced today that 'in accordance with general business conditions and prevailing low values of meat and other commodities' salaries of the company will be reduced 10 per cent effective April 4. Wages were not affected by the order," says an "A.P." dispatch today.

President T. G. Lee of the Armour Co. not being immediately available, we have to await word from him May 9 or 10 in the meantime, someone may be able to tell us the difference between a salary and a wage. The revolutionary doesn't help. If you are interested in knowing what it says, read on

"Salary—

Re compense, usually periodically, for services rendered, stipend.

"Stipend—A salary, especially clerical income.

"Wage—Payment for service rendered (plural) hire paid to servants."

"The fight on the sales tax" says a writer, well known financial authority, "must have been encouraged by manufacturers and retailers who feared it would hurt their business. They will now find that the resulting confusion and fears have done much more harm than the proposed levy would have done for the sales tax would have been passed on to the consumer in a way that would have caused only momentary falling off in demand for individual products."

* * *

We hear the new week of the new administration being ushered announcement regarding his new car from Walter Chrysler with public curiosity centering on the price.

Abolition of short selling would weaken and render less stable the whole stock market, but this undesirable effect would be greatly lessened on odd-lot orders and would impose additional burdens upon small stockholders, in the opinion of Edward Meeker, economist to the New York Stock Exchange, in his book "Short Selling," just published.

Regarding odd-lots Meeker says:

"Demand for odd lots is subject to extensive and speedy fluctuations. At times buying orders in odd lots will pour into the market all over. At other times the flow of orders to buy will suddenly almost cease, or will turn into a wave of odd-lot selling. The odd-lot dealer cannot anticipate this demand and back up in advance by purchasing great amounts of shares in 100 share lots. It is consequently necessary for the odd lot dealer to use the short sale as a species of hedge."

Under such circumstances, Meeker says, short dealers might be forced from business and short of this extremity, they would certainly be compelled greatly to increase the existing price differential of ¼ to ½ between odd lots and 100 share lots.

Writings on the Stock Exchange rule which requires that members must obtain separate and written authorization from their customers before using their margin stock, Mr. Meeker says:

"If the lending of long stock to fill a short sale is in theory an action adverse to the owner of the long stock, it must be equally true that the loan of the money advanced against the stock loan is an action equally adverse to the short seller because it facilitates the lending of long stock held on margin."

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

STOCK market showed a better tone today as pressure was lifted. Hope that Speaker Garner in his address to the House today would bring the insurgent Congressmen back into line, thus assuring a balanced budget, was a supporting factor. The closing was mixed.

Sentiment also was aided by Ford's announcement of his new models and by the better showing of the railroads in February, as evidenced by the Baltimore & Ohio and N. Y. Central reports.

Strength in Dollar Is Helpful Factor

Strength in the dollar against foreign currencies, indicating a change in the European distrust of the nation's credit status following the defeat of the sales tax, was another help today.

Rails Best Acting on the Recovery

The rails were the best acting group today when N. Y. Central ran up a point or so and others showed moderate advances. U. S. Steel was up a point at the close, time and other leaders like American Telephone and Allied Chem cal worked higher.

Trading however, was at a slow pace and price movements were generally narrow with few important changes.

Look for "Adjustment" in Harvester Operations

According to the gossip, the present European trip of International Harvester's president may result in a considerable 'adjustment' of domestic and Canadian plant operations.

Oil Price Advance Viewed

Advance in price of Mid Continent crude oil last week has attracted wide attention because of the talk that all producers are not certain the higher quotation will be maintained. However, some authorities point out that if curtailment in output can be maintained in this country until the season of heavy demand.

Closing Slightly Lower in London

London, March 28 (INS)—Due to selling pressure, most stocks closed slightly while Seife & Co., was at a change today. Industrial and shares felt the selling pressure while other issues were mainly unaffected.

BOSTON STOCKS ARE MOSTLY HIGHER

Stocks were mostly higher in today's dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange, with changes ranging from fractions to around two points. Edison Electric was soft in an otherwise firm utility group and lowered around two points to a new low for the year.

American Telephone advanced well over a point and New England Telephone was almost two points higher. Copper shares were weak following the lead of New York listed shares. Anaconda dropped nearly a point to a new low for the year.

American Woolen preferred advanced around a point. New Haven and Atchison showed gains of around a point, while Pennsylvania was unchanged. Kreuger & Toll and Gillette each showed fractional gains.

Brown & Co. preferred was at a new low for the year on a point recession. Pacific Mills was down slightly while Seife & Co., was at a fractionally higher level.

N. Y. Shipbuilding Retiring Shares

Stockholders of New York Shipbuilding Co. at annual meeting approved the retirement of 8490 shares of preferred, 50,756 shares of participating stock and 27,330 shares of founders stock.

SPECTATOR Says:

Action of stocks suggests an extremely thin market on the upside and a bad time for the shorts if the news should suddenly turn constructive. However, the same obstacle still exists—the cloud in the Washington tax "sky"—and until this shows signs of clearing, this is a good market to avoid.

Rise in Franc

Rumors of unfavorable developments on the other side may be attributed to the rise in the franc above the gold export point. If maintained, this opens the possibility of further shipments of gold to France . . . However, this would be reversed quickly if the House votes together on balancing the budget.

Wilmington was seen as supporting General Motors. Buying was understood to be for the du Pont account. Normally a reliable guide, its value is lessened by the fact Wilmington was said to have taken a lot of motors around 51 some time ago.

Here and There

Weakness in Drug was due to special liquidation, and the same in Consolidated Gas. Impairment of large holdings due to the decline in other securities was said to be the reason. The lower stocks go the more of this is likely to develop. In addition, a good deal of disgusted selling has been noted in the last few days, due to the Washington tax impasse. . . Reports that some brokerage houses were going to call in some stock on the short due to poor response from customers on permission to loan their stock was partly responsible for the late rally . A pretty thin reason for a better market.

A lot of the buying in Steel in the last two days has been for interests identified with the U. S. Steel Corporation.

Westinghouse will be in line for a lot of business if Pennsylvania Railroad gets the $35,000,000 Reconstruction Corporation loan.

Recent tape action of Auburn suggests that the big liquidation in that stock is over for the present anyway.

Quiet Firmness Is Seen on Big Curb

New York, March 29 (INS)—Curb market displayed quiet firmness today with drying up of liquidation enabling most sections of the list to improve somewhat, but on conservative buying demand. With uncertainty still existing over pending tax legislation traders were inclined to adopt a stand-off attitude.

Electric Bond & Share new was a highlight in a generally firm utility group, pushing ahead eight points. Fractional price gains were registered in American Superpower, American Gas & Electric and Penn Gas. Hudson Power among others.

Firming Tendencies Appear in Bonds

New York, March 28 (INS)—Firming tendencies continued to appear in the bond market through the late dealings today. United States Government obligations were well supported. Generally a fractional gains on the day, recapping a part of their yesterday's losses. Bonds of international telephone continued under pressure with the 4½ per cent dipping about 6 points and then recovering 4-5ths.

Blaine Heads Rail Protective Board

New York, March 29—Protective committee for New Orleans Great Northern Railroad first mortgage 5 per cent bonds of 1955 has been formed. It consists of James G. Blaine, chairman, F. J. Lisman and H. S. Venner.

PRICE CHANGES ARE NARROW IN WALL STREET

New York March 29.—Net changes in prices were narrow at the close of trading on the New York Stock Exchange today.

The stock market was restrained by scattered selling from nearly all quarters of the country, although it was moderately higher during much of the session, in response to progress in Washington under Speaker Garner toward balancing the budget.

DOLLAR PRESSURE LETS UP

The more reassuring outlook for sound budget was reflected in relief of pressure against the dollar in the foreign exchanges. The French franc, which had been under pressure, broke well below the parity when it would be profitable for France to take gold from New York and the pound sterling reacted a few cents. There was also a lightening of pressure against U. S. Government bonds.

Commercial paper was in the phone was recommended by the Federal Reserve Bank in Chicago. It was suggested that the Federal Reserve banks purchase the future maturities of Treasury obligations which they now hold. The banks increased by $147,000,000 their investments of certificates other than Government securities during the week ended March 23.

Loans on securities, however, took to the extent of $250,000,000 a week, nearly double the decline in bank loans for the period and in other banks where the relief was greater. $5,000,000 a week is a reasonable part of a drop of $500,000,000 in demand deposits for member banks, reflected payment of income taxes.

Q. AND A. DEPARTMENT

Dear Sympathetic Aunt Bella—
The way you was acting at the party last night was nothing short of rancid. Ain't you ever had a drink before?
—Disgusted.

Ans.—As a matter of fact, pal, Aunt Bella was as sober as a wet Congressman. So Mort Downey and Tony Wons arrive in town Sat. Hope their visit this trip will be more amiable than their last . . . When Supt. of Schools Campbell called Arthur (WEEI) Edes on the phone yest'y to have the station b'cast the "no school" announcement, Arthur called the super right back, suspecting that some rebel schoolboy had made the original call.

Enforce Blue Sky Law

Bay Staters Swindled Out of Millions

Mr. John C. Hull tells the Massachusetts Legislature that too many people in this Commonwealth are being flim-flammed out of their savings.

Mr. Hull is the State Director of the Blue Sky Law.

The purpose of that law was to prevent the fraudulent sale of worthless securities.

Mr. Hull's admission that the law which he is supposed to enforce has brought little or no protection to the gullible people of this State is neither new nor startling.

Calvin Coolidge, when he was Governor, estimated that at least $50,000,000 of worthless stock was being unloaded upon the innocent people annually. Mr. Coolidge is not careless or extravagant with figures.

In the orgy of stock gambling which followed, it is safe to say that several hundred millions of dollars of phony stock and securities have been dumped every year into the laps of the eager, expectant and inexperienced buyers.

Everything from cats and dogs to holes in the ground have been capitalized by suave promoters and glib salesmen.

Moreover, these suave promoters and glib salesmen have gone to the innocent investors with the badge and license of the State. Their stocks have been authorized for sale by the State. They have themselves been licensed as salesmen. Life savings have been taken out of the bank, and all the investors now have to show for their improvidence are the richly engraved stock certificates which were presumably backed by the State, but are worth no more than the paper they are printed on.

Mr. Hull says that "real teeth" must be put into the law to save the innocent people from this notorious exploitation. Possibly he is right. If so, he should be given all the law he needs.

But there are a good many sensible people who cannot be convinced that the law is not adequate as it stands. Firm and enthusiastic enforcement of the existing law by Mr. Hull and his department certainly would eliminate many of the disgusting evils which are being practised. The will and courage to enforce a law are often more potent than the law itself.

'Aiding' the Jobless

Instead of clearing the way for emergency legislation to relieve unemployment the Senatorial spokesmen of the Hoover Administration are scheming to block such legislation by debating the so-called Philippine Independence Bill of Senator Hawes of Missouri.

The Hawes bill, like the Hare bill recently reported to the House, would betray the Philippine people, disgrace the American people, and benefit chiefly the lobbyists of special interests which are the main supporters of this legislation.

No wonder Senator Hawes wishes this measure to be taken up quickly and rushed through the Senate after only a few days' debate.

Extended debate would open the eyes of the Philippine people and the American people to the real reasons why certain powerful special interests are so eager to have this legislation jammed through the Senate before the committee hearings have been printed, much less digested by the Senate and the public.

Are there no Senators in Congress who have the courage and the humanity to block entirely consideration of the Hawes bill until the Congress shall have passed emergency legislation to provide employment for our eight million Americans who are out of work and looking to the Government at Washington for the kind of American relief that only honest work can provide?

Grateful to America

"The Jewish people will forever remember with gratitude America's good services to their cause. Jewish Palestine deeply appreciates America's goodwill and hopes to be linked forever with you in a union of love and action."

The above is from the farewell address made to the people of Boston by Dr. Nahum Sokolow, the distinguished President of the World Zionist movement.

We are glad and proud to receive this fine compliment. Boston has the heritage of a tender solicitude and keen interest in the democratic progress of people everywhere. Whether it was the struggle of the Polish people under Kossuth for liberty, the desire of the Irish people for freedom or the contest of the Jewish people to escape the pogroms under the Czaristic regime in Russia, active aid and comfort have been extended by the American people regardless of race or religion.

From these people we have received the gratitude so nicely expressed by Dr. Sokolow. The friendship and goodwill of other peoples are the strongest asset America can possess in its international affairs. We acquire that friendship by our own voluntary and independent action with them, not by being enmeshed in the pacts and intrigues of secret diplomacy.

Pennsylvania-Dutch Brew

Like truth, certain old Spanish and other customs may be crushed to earth, but will bob up again. A citizen in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, where the art of home brewing has not been stamped out by the rigor of the law, got pinched last week. Judge Groff told him to go ahead and brew his peck of malt—bought at the grocery—and have it tested later by jurors.

Perhaps this was just a way out for the culprit. He can make a dreadful batch of near-beer out of it that will make the jurors ill. Or his sense of pride may forbid this, and he will do a real good job and face the consequences.

The stigma of being a bad brewer is difficult for a man to live down. The citizen is in a fix. Can the court compel him to do an illegal deed and incriminate himself? Not according to Blackstone. One guess is that the affair will blow over and end with an amicable exchange of recipes between jurors and defendant.

New York Day by Day

Stranger Than Fiction

NEW YORK, March 29—This is a true story fiction editors would dismiss with a shrug as drawing the long bow. A prominent San Franciscan was promised a gay party when he came to New York by a metropolitan banker, himself royally entertained at the Bohemian Club at the Golden Gate.

The banker, living sedately, knew nothing of the frothier side of the city. The San Franciscan had "been around" and was asked by the banker to select the guests and he would settle the check. Among those invited were a dozen orchidaceous beauties from a Broadway extravaganza.

It was surprising hoop-la for the church-going host. After blinking awhile he became utterly fascinated—in the manner of the snake charming the bird—with a vivacious blond on his right. The more champagne she drank the more a kittenish hoyden she became. Cute!

After the party the banker delivered the California guest at his hotel and with engaging naivete confessed he had given the elfin lady a $20 gold piece. "That will compensate her for such a dull evening with an old stick-in-the-mud," he explained.

The Californian indulged a secret smile. He knew such party girls were accustomed to a thousand dollar bill or something smart in chinchilla. At any rate he returned to the west coast and three weeks later came to New York with his wife. The banker phoned in a state of fixed despair. He was hearing whispers.

The chorus girl, thinking the $20 piece was merely "for luck," scratched her initals on it along with the banker's and the date of the dinner. She was displaying it with sly winks. The banker, fearing tabloid headlines, asked his friend to get the coin at all costs.

Next evening the San Franciscan and wife dropped into a movie. Later the chorus girl and a friend lurched in blotto and left shortly. On the way out the San Franciscan's wife picked up a dropped purse. Inside was the initialed coin. Next day he tossed it on the banker's desk with: "How's that for service?"

I wonder if the shanty boat hasn't been overlooked by novelist, playwright and scenarist. Formative years were spent on the river. In the slimy sprays of life among gatherers of driftwood and fishers of the mud-flats was a fiercely courageous effort to exist. Here were elemental situations, savage lusts, with the unceasing drag of the undertow, that need only expert technique to spark into exciting drama.

That peripatetic paragrapher, Bob Davis, has been such a gadabout the past few years that his crony, Irvin Cobb, says Davis cannot get a full night's sleep without somebody putting a cinder in his eye and shaking up the bed at intervals. Already this year he has lollopped 22,000 miles and is just getting going.

Studied artificialities of New York's intelligentsia are vastly amusing from side lines. Magnificently culted, they imagine themselves collaborators with Omnipotence. Actually they are so many Tobys with swat-bladders or red-nosed zanies balancing feathers. Under strain of living up to a pseudo fame, every conversation, every situation becomes a might? heave-ho to poniard a pun or turn a feeble banality into a smart crack.

A few such comiques are court jesters to the rich, invited on free European tours, to Palm Beach villas and yachting cruises. When their brand of humor is not receiving sufficient outlet they have a fling at vaudeville or movie shorts. At least once.

A richly temperament, movie star, spurning a contract not including her husband at $1000 a week, inspires Bill Halligan to: "She has the courage of her husband's conviction."

Rumors that, unless skies clear, a theatrical club may give up the ghost, inspired a veteran actor to philosophize: "Many loafing in the artificial glare of the club so long will become as blind as mine mules in daylight. Dogs will have to lead them around."

An incredibly unkempt and lovelorn lady of The Village Artico has attempted suicide often—by cutting her throat with a chocolate eclaire, jumping into a dry well, etc. Her last try she overdosed herself with headache powders. A wag wagged: "Some day she's going to try washing powder—and make the grade."

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Prove We're Right

A THING shocking to most of us has happened in Entywood, Montana. On March 12 a 14-year-old girl was buried there with full Communistic rites. A strange, dark scene—

The great hall of the Farmer-Labor temple draped in red and black. Within that bloody gloom the pallor of massed faces, deliberately fearless, grimly defiant. In the center the slim casket, guarded by children wearing the red insignia of the Young Pioneers, carrying red flags.

No sermon. No prayers. No sacred music reaching sobbingly to God for comfort in a desperate hour. Instead, a man's voice raised in fierce denunciation of our land and times, announcing triumphantly that the dead child was a Bolshevik. A shrill, jangling chorus of children's voices singing the "Internationale." Then, presently, the sound of clods falling, bluntly, on a coffin lid.

You recoil from the picture? You feel it's all wrong—a thing like that, in America? Many others feel that way, too. Recently a great mass-meeting against Communism was held in New York and the following six resolutions adopted:

"Re-establishment in the Department of Justice of a Bureau of Investigation with full authority to 'search out, scrutinize and keep under constant supervision the Communist organization in this country.'"

"Exclusion from the American markets of all goods made in Russia."

"Exclusion of the Communist and Workers' parties, as now constituted, from the right to function as political parties."

"Legislation making it a crime to advocate the subversion of the United States by force."

"Strengthening of immigration laws as applied to Communists."

"That's the stuff!" you say approvingly. That's the way to treat them! We don't want people in this country who sneer at God and try to break down our American institutions and government."

We certainly don't!

But—neither can we keep such people out merely by spying on them, passing laws prohibiting them. Even though we excluded every Bolshevik from America, we cannot stop Communism unless—what?

UNLESS WE CAN PROVE THAT WE HAVE SOMETHING BETTER THAN COMMUNISM.

The Russians did not go Communistic through sheer perversity. They overthrew the old government because the old government had failed them. They were hungry and hopeless; they were neglected, exploited and abused under the old form of government. They could stand it no longer. When men see red, they go red. They thought Communism would save them from these evils. And so—Russia became Bolshevik.

And now we are fighting Communism in America.

But we cannot curb Communism merely by saying that we're the wisest and strongest and kindest nation on earth, and that all representatives of all other governments are so-and-so's.

WE MUST PROVE THAT THIS IS TRUE. WE MUST PROVE THAT AMERICA IS A BETTER, KINDER PLACE FOR WORKING PEOPLE THAN RUSSIA.

We can do that—

If we can prove that American government and American business give the working man a square deal; keep him from being hungry and homeless, neglected, exploited and abused—

If we are to prove that homes are safe in America—

That God is honored in America and law respected—

Then we do not need to fear or fight Communism. For men do not want to change their government if they are prospering under that government.

Just Folks

The Tale of a Scorpion

We caught him down in Yucatan, a scorpion inky black.
We put him in a bottle for we hoped to bring him back.
It took some time to get him there since pluck is apt to fail
When any healthy scorpion starts lashing with its tail.

Brave Bill, the party naturalist, stepped up and took command,
The ways of stinging scorpions he seemed to understand,
So he thrust the bottled creature in the pocket of his coat,
And we thought no more about it as we started for the boat.

But somewhere west of Merida the lid came off the jar
And the crowd of us discovered just how cunning scorpions are,
For while we jogged along the road, that thing as black as crepe,
Embraced the opportunity fate offered to escape.

We know not when he left us nor just how he got away,
We only know it must have been that insect's lucky day,
But down in Chichen Itza crawls a scorpion again,
Who tells his many children to beware of traveling men.

The People Will Pay the Hoover Deficit

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Boston Evening American.

THE DEFEAT of the sales tax in the House had been a foregone conclusion for a week before the vote was taken; and nothing happened the day the vote was taken that had not been known before. In the course of the debate some extreme statements were made which reflect, we think, something of the undercurrent of feeling in the country.

Perhaps it is impossible to have 8,000,000 breadwinners refused their inalienable right to work with the 40,000,000 in dire distress, with a face sternset against a penny from the Federal Treasury for the hungry, and a two-billion-dollar loan from the Treasury to the powerful—perhaps we cannot have these conditions and expect all men to think with sweet reasonableness. There is no doubt but that the fury in the House was directed at the rich and powerful, but it may be seriously doubted whether these ultimately will be hurt.

If taxes are concentrated to any degree on them, they have recourse to tax exempt securities. And there are a thousand and one devices through which they are able to get around a law.

In the end the great mass of the people will pay.

Both Party Organizations Were Smashed

There are two lines of comment on the result that call for some attention. The press propagandists of the Administration, whose baby the deficit is, lay great stress on the fact that the Democratic leaders in the House could not control their men, and that great numbers revolted. These propagandists tenderly refrain from stressing the utter futility and failure of Mr. Snell, Republican leader, to lead and control his men. The revolt was a bi-partisan revolt; and both party organizations were smashed.

The Democrats' majority in the House is so small that the change of a few votes—as many as four or five—can upset the majority. The marvel is that the leaders have been able to hold this majority together so perfectly practically all the time. The danger is that having broken away from the leadership this time, they may continue in the future. And if they continue in the future the inevitable conclusion of the thoughtful in the country will be that the party lacks the solidarity and discipline for government.

An Unimpressive Figure

But for "guts," we heartily commend Mr. Snell to the consideration of the dazed—and the partisan propagandists of the Hoover press. He leads almost as many men in the House as Mr. Rainey. He had the support of Mr. Hoover, who is his party's candidate for President just now. He had the active support of Ogden Mills. And he was unable to hold his party together.

Indeed, Mr. La Guardia made Mr. Snell look like a drifter with the soullions and the cooks rather than like a leader.

More than that he did not make an impressive fighter even when he had every advantage with him. He has not stood out as a gallant figure in this struggle. Rainey did; and Crisp did—they stood to their guns, and everyone knew where they were fighting. But Snell, leader of the Hoover Administration forces, whose baby the deficit is, was an inconspicuous and an unimpressive figure throughout. Had he held his men together, the bill would have passed; but the Republicans broke away from his leadership.

But Mr. Snell talks like a conquering hero after a condolence meeting with President Hoover, whose baby the deficit is. He implies that he and his party will do nothing further to meet the deficit for which his party is responsible.

"It is up to the Democrats," he says. To do what? To meet the more than $2,000,000,000 deficit of the Hoover Administration. No responsibility on the part of the Administration, says the gleeful Mr. Snell. And then he says something more that for sheer effrontery almost approaches the campaign waged for Mr. Hoover four years ago—that the Republicans supported the bill. That is true precisely in the sense that the Democrats supported the bill. They did; but both Republicans and Democrats opposed and defeated the bill.

A Penalty the People Must Pay

But there still stands the deficit. There still remains the fact that the budget is not balanced. There still remains the threat to the credit of the nation. And while the two-billion-dollar deficit is the baby of the Administration, the House must report a tax bill to meet it; and this will be done.

In doing it, it will be impossible to find a tax that will be popular with all the people. Taxes always are as welcome as death. But they are necessary if organized society is to be held together.

The money cannot be raised by income and corporation taxes under existing conditions: for these incomes are lower than for many years, and there always are the tax-exempt securities. There is only one way to make wealth bear the entire burden, and that is through a capital tax—which just now is impossible. No tax can be devised just now that does not fall heavily on all the people. It is a penalty they must pay for the Hoover deficit.

"Soaking the Rich"

The sales tax is out; the vote has settled that.

But there looms the Hoover deficit—and the Democratic leadership in the House will meet it, though it is not their "baby."

Mr. Rainey immediately after the vote addressed the country, over the radio, promising another method for meeting the deficit within a week, and explaining why nothing more can be added by way of "soaking the rich." No living man has fought for so many years with such consistency for the average man, but he has the saving salt of common sense. He thinks that "the most violent advocate of soaking the rich" ought to be satisfied with what has been done, and he adds:

"The danger is that we may have driven the rich by this bill, so far as it has gone, into tax exempt securities, and that we have done that, capital in industry will be greatly impaired and more industries will close."

He knows, and says, that there is no possible way to meet the Hoover deficit without resorting to unpleasant taxes such as "the irritating nuisance taxes of war times or something of the kind. The postage rates will be increased from two to three cents. And then—

"The balance of it we can raise by resorting to such taxes as taxes on radios, automobiles, gasoline, electricity, cigarettes and tobacco, newspaper, stamp taxes on checks, taxes on conveyances of real estate, and all that kind of nuisance taxes which everybody will pay, but the solvency of this great government must be restored."

Now that "the only party fit to govern" has given us a deficit of more than two billion, now that we are running behind as much as one million a day, there is no way under existing laws and Constitutional provisions to meet the Hoover deficit without laying some burden on all the people.

We Must All Pay the Piper

For Mr. Hoover has not eliminate poverty—he has added immeasurably to it. And he has not maintained prosperity—his policies have wrecked prosperity and wiped out the incomes even of the rich. And he has not maintained the credit of the nation—for with this deficit that is threatened. The people voted for his policies and on his promises—and now we must all pay the piper.

Blizzards and Sunshine
Two New Cars
See Cocolobo
And Black Caesar's Island

—By Arthur Brisbane—

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 30—Frank B. Shutts' Miami Herald prints on the front page, "Blizzards whirling in Eastern States. Motorists marooned. After-Easter storms leave snow 7 to 12 inches deep."

Here, brilliant, warm sunshine, thousands bathing in the ocean, children spending the day in their bathing suits.

John Hertz of New York and Chicago has returned here from the laborious North.

Until frequently, he thought he had given up business and all other practical pursuits. Then, unexpectedly he found himself in the moving picture business.

Whatever Mr. Hertz has, he got for himself. He has worked all the way from the bottom up, knows the country and its people, therefore it is encouraging to observe his cheerfulness and hear his statement that conditions will improve and rapidly.

"Business, industry and men will adjust themselves to conditions as they are, and build up from where they are. They will not sit around waiting for miracles."

On Thursday, Henry Ford will show his new eight and four-cylinder models.

It is announced that the eight-cylinder car will do 75 miles an hour, and sell, probably, at a price not far above that of the 1931 Model A four-cylinder. The new four-cylinder Ford, with many improvements, is expected to sell at a price considerably below the recent four-cylinder prices.

Both cars will have the same chassis, that the engines may be interchangeable.

The writer can testify that 75 miles an hour is no exaggeration as to the speed of Mr. Ford's new eight-cylinder model, having driven with Mr. Ford holding the wheel of his eight-cylinder, three weeks ago. It does all in the way of speed that this sedate person could desire and more.

When you come here take a boat for fishing or merely for seeing and travel through smooth land-locked waters, protected on the ocean side by coral reefs, covered with palms; when you have seen these shores and waters, the long stretches of keys and islands with heavily-laden cocoanut palm trees, you know that this nation's property includes the world's most beautiful tropical region.

Carl Fisher as he drove one of his power boats down to Cocolobo Island this morning, bewailed the passing of the flamingoes that once flew in flocks, making the whole sky seem bright pink. Ships landing here years ago filled casks with the flamingoes to eat on the way back.

They caught them in thousands easily, by stretching a string on stakes along the edge of the water. The heavy birds, like airplanes, must get a running start to rise into the air.

Frightened by cries back of them, they ran toward the water, caught their legs in the string, fell down and made no effort to rise. They were clubbed to death in thousands. Later men with guns to get the feathers for women's hats killed the few that were left.

Ernest F. Coe of this city, and other citizens are interested in restoring the flamingo and other interesting creatures in a great everglades national park at the southern end of Florida. Their plan should go through.

A fine boat passes, and you are told, "There goes Pastor Jones, richest colored man in this neighborhood." He owns a beautiful island of about 100 acres, raises all tropical fruits, catches fish, stone crabs, lobsters, has sent his sons to college.

One of those sons, Jim Jones, when you reach Cocolobo Island will take from an enclosed reservoir, stone crabs for your luncheon. He skillfully breaks off the two giant claws, throws the rest of the crab overboard and it swims away.

Jim Jones says "he will grow new claws and we will catch him again." What a life that must be for a crab.

A white man says, "No, if you take one big claw, leaving the other claw with which to catch his food and fight, the crab will grow the missing claw again. But with both claws gone he can't live."

You see the bones of a whale head more than 25 feet long that recently came ashore on Cocolobo Island, and hear about huge sharks that dashed at full speed against the body of the helpless whale, plunging their heads into its sides and backing out with enormous pieces of whale meat.

Creatures of the ocean, like their two-legged relatives on land, are ferociously cruel in dealing with each other.

Seminole Indians, that once owned all this country and now live hidden away in the Everglades swamps, have opinions

If Deal to Return Lindbergh Baby Fails "They'll Know Why," Says Curtis

By JAMES KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Norfolk, Va., March 30 (INS)—Rear-Admiral Guy H. Burrage, retired, acting as "spokesman" for the three negotiators for the return of the Lindbergh baby, declared today that "nothing has happened."

The Admiral made his declaration following a brief conference with Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock, dean of Christ Episcopal Church, and John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk shipbuilder, his two colleagues in conducting negotiations.

Facing about 40 newspapermen in the room of a downtown hotel, the Admiral took from his pocket a statement concurred in by his two associates.

The statement was as follows:

"If there is failure in the Norfolk negotiations, the kidnapers, and they alone, will know why."

He was immediately bombarded with questions to explain the statement.

SPEAK FOR ITSELF

The Admiral could not explain it satisfactorily and said the statement would have to speak for itself.

The Admiral was asked if there was any chance that he and his two colleagues were being misled in these negotiations.

His answer was:

"Have you ever been misled?"

And then after a long pause he said:

"We may be misled — undoubtedly."

He quickly declared that he had

HOUSE VOTES $45,000,000 MORE TAXES

Garner Again Takes the Floor; Hoover Budget Faces New Slash of $243,000,000

Washington, March 30 (AP)—A docile House today marched straight down the new tax-raising road marked out for it by its ways and means committee.

Item by item, it gave approval to revenue producing amendments calculated to add millions of dollars to the funds derived by the government from the bill.

There was an absence of controversy as it lowered exemptions on surtax rates to produce incomes of more than $6000 to those rates. Above $10,000 rates were graduated upward. This will yield $77,000,000.

Leaders foresaw a dispute over the proposal to increase first-class postage rates by one cent.

Five new revenue suggestions were brought in by the committee at the opening of the session and were estimated to produce $45,000,000.

GARNER TAKES FLOOR

They include increase to 13½ per cent in corporate income tax and a similar 15 per cent tax on consolidated and affiliated returns, the two boosts to yield $23,000,000; a five per cent tax on the manufacturers price of airplanes, $2,000,000; an increase to 33⅓ per cent

CONVICT PAIR SLIDE TO FREEDOM ON ROPE OF SHEETS

Ready to shoot on sight, Patrolman Timothy Wallace (with gun) and Sergt.-Inspector John D. "Duck" Holmes, both of the Joy st. station, were two of the large squad of police sent to search this tenement house at 19 Harrison st., West End, on tip that "Bad Willie" Gray and Vincent Zamotel were hiding there after their daring escape from the jail.

6 ARRESTS MADE, 2 WOMEN HUNTED

Searchers Ordered "Shoot to Kill" in Quest of Escaped Bandit and Trusty

William E. (Bad Willie) Gray, gunman desperado and jail-breaker, is at large again.

Gangland snatched him out of Charles St. Jail today in the most defiant gesture against law and order ever made by the underworld in Boston.

Four carloads of gangsters, parked in front of the jail, covered his escape from the jail and aided in his getaway after he slipped through the fingers of guards and jail officials whom he had bamboozled for weeks in the pose of a meek and suffering prisoner.

TWO WOMEN HUNTED.

Late this afternoon, 12 hours after his escape, police had found no trace of him despite a frenzied search and a series of raids in the West End, Jamaica Plain, Chelsea and Billerica.

Fifteen houses in the Third st. section of Chelsea were also searched without result except a flurry of excitement that caused crowds to gather in the neighborhood.

Two women were being sought, another was under surveillance and five men were in custody, two being alleged friends of Gray, who were arrested after a spectacular Chelsea auto chase as a result of a tip that they aided in his escape.

A report was current in police circles and in the underworld that the $5000 Dorchester Savings Bank holdup on Monday was perpetrated by three of Gray's bandit gang to obtain funds for the delivery plot.

Gray had boasted that Charles st. jail would never hold him, and the jail officials apparently thought it was an idle boast, although he had a record of two previous escapes and three frustrated attempts.

TRUSTY FLEES WITH GRAY

Early today, while his guards were doing something besides guarding him, he sawed a bar from his cell in the hospital section on the third floor, sawed two more from a window in the hospital recreation room and slid 36 feet down a rope of sheets to freedom right under the very noses of jail

BAY STATERS ON LINDY 'HUNT'

Mt. Clemens, Mich., March 30 (INS)—Two Massachusetts detectives here today admitted they were "investigating a local angle of the Lindbergh case."

The detectives, Thomas G. Burke and Orville Wesley, refused to amplify their admission. They were accompanied by a lieutenant of the Michigan State police who said he was acting as a guide.

Middleboro, March 30 (INS)—State Troopers Thomas G. Burke and Orville Wesley are in Michigan to extradite Joseph Draleaus on the charge of stealing an automobile in Hyannis and not in connection with the Lindbergh case.

This information was given out this afternoon at the state police barracks when word was received from Mt. Clemens, Mich., that Burke and Wesley were engaged in a new angle in the famous kidnaping case.

"If a new angle in the Lindbergh baby kidnaping case has developed in he Draleaus case i is news a use here," an official a he barracks said.

Roosevelt Delegates to Be First on Ballot

A victory for Franklin D. Roosevelt was chalked up today in Massachusetts—even if it was only a minor victory.

In the drawing for positions of delegates-at-large on the ballot, the Roosevelt slates won first place, with the Smith slate relegated to second place.

Secretary of State Cook used a little leather bottle, such as is used in "Kelly pool" games, to throw out the markers which decided the positions.

The Roosevelt forces also won the "edge" in the drawing for positions of candidates for district delegates. In eight of the 15 congressional districts Roosevelt candidates will be in first places on the ballots.

These districts are the fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, tenth, eleventh, fourteenth and fifteenth.

SEES ROOSEVELT SWEEP.

A 400,000 vote in Massachusetts in the presidential primaries means a victory of not less than 25,000 for Roosevelt, Mayor Curley declared at the noon meeting in the Roosevelt-for-President Forum.

Although his voice was none too strong, as the result of a cold, the mayor was full of enthusiasm and expressed gratification over the Roosevelt victory in the drawings for ballot positions.

"It is our usual luck," he said with a grin, "and with our Roosevelt slate leading the ballot we have a decided advantage."

Curley declared confidently that if a straw ballot were taken today "70 out of every 100 persons in the street would be for Roosevelt."

"Instead of 36 to 0 for Smith, which Gov. Ely predicted, it now looks as if it would be exactly the reverse," said the Mayor.

MAYOR'S BUSY DAY

Other speakers at the forum included Mrs. Mary E. Gallagher, secretary of the Roosevelt League for Women; Arthur Reilly, chairman of the school committee, and Whitfield Turk of Winchester.

In addition to his noon speech, the mayor's appearances for today included addresses before the members of the Engineers' Club in their clubrooms in Commonwealth ave. at 2 p. m.; employes of the Ford Co. at their plant in Somerville at 3 p. m.; employes of the Boston Opera House and members of the New Moon company at 3:30 o'clock in the Opera House; members of the St. Alphonsus A. A. at their annual banquet in their quarters in Smith st., Roxbury, at 7:30, and the dedication of the new Faneuil Library in Brighton at 8 p. m.

The mayor then starts the most strenuous part of his program. At 8:30 o'clock he will speak at a Roosevelt rally in the John J. Williams Municipal Building, Brookline st. and Shawmut ave., South End, and at 9 p. m. will address another group of Roosevelt supporters in the Theodore Roosevelt school, Egleston sq.

Atterbury Asks Curb on Trucks and Buses

New York, March 30 (AP)—Gen. W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, says regulation of trucks buses and waterways is essential to prosperity of the railroads.

He told the Economic Club last night that failure to regulate commercial highway competition leads to overproduction of transportation facilities "just as serious as that in agriculture or industry."

WINTHROP MAN ENDS HIS LIFE

Charles H. Holbrook, 47, a Boston accountant, was found dead today in his garage on Sargent st., Winthrop, a suicide by carbon monoxide.

The body was found by George Patch, a milkman, who heard the motor running behind closed doors and stopped to investigate.

Police said that Holbrook's head was near a rubber tube projecting from the exhaust pipe.

According to Sergt. Louis Donovan of the Winthrop police, Holbrook was divorced from his wife who has since remarried and is living in Quincy. He is the father of three daughters and a son.

ADMITS HE IS 'WHOLE CLUB'

Anthony Anastacis of Preble st., South Boston, testified today in Federal court he was the board of government of the South Boston A. A., which, he said, has a membership of 16.

Pleading not guilty to a complaint charging possession of one-half pint of liquor at the clubs quarters, Anastacis was grilled as follows by Asst. U. S. Atty. Hugo Bagnulo:

Q.—Who are the officers of the South Boston A. A.? A.—I am.

Q.—You are the board of government? A.—Yes.

Q.—What, are you the president, vice-president, recording secretary, treasurer? A.—Yes.

Q.—How many members comprise the club? A.—Fifteen.

Q.—Name them? A.—There's John Smith.—(let me think).

Q.—Is Pochontas a member or John Jones a member?

Anastacis became thoughtful and Commissioner Lummus told him its $500 for the grand jury.
